Vandals target night motorists

Four automobiles were damaged as they traveled along Route 203, a quarter-mile south of Harrison Street, under a railroad overpass, it was reported at 11:34 p.m. Saturday, June 1.

The first such incident occurred at 11:30 p.m. on May 24 at the same location when seven vehicles were damaged.

According to the June 1 report, an unknown person or persons threw rocks from the overpass onto the passing vehicles, causing damage to roofs, windshields and other windows.

Bonnie Liebold was traveling south on Route 203 when her car was hit by rocks. She said she "went into shock" after a large stone hit her car but managed to pull the vehicle off the side of the road. She received facial cuts from a broken windshield, cuts and bruises to her legs and arms. In addition, she sustained a "stiff neck" and has suffered headaches daily since the accident.

"My nerves are so bad that I can't work at the present time, and I am employed as manager of JR's Restaurant and Lounge in St. Louis county. I really think someone should do something before someone is killed," Liebold said. There has not yet been an estimate of damage to her car.

She added that the police officer at the accident scene told her police contacted the railroad authorities and asked them to post a guard at the overpass to try to eliminate the danger to passing motorists.

Other drivers whose cars were damaged this past Saturday included John C. Bell, 2425 Washington Ave., who said his 1984 Dodge car was dented below the right rear view mirror; Gary Combs of National City, who said his car received damage to rear view mirrors; and Bob Brand of Mascoutah, who said his 1978 Ford Pinto sustained a dent on the hood and top and a broken windshield.

Police Chief William Papa said the area is within the city of Madison; however, the overpass is railroad property and considered private property. A spokesman for the railroad could not be reached for comment.

While the police officer and Andy's Towing Service were at the scene preparing to move the damaged Liebold auto, bricks were thrown on the hood of the tow truck, causing considerable damage.

POTENTIALLY DEADLY. The extensive damage to this small compact car is the result of the throwing of a cluster of bricks, in foreground, from the Illinois Route 203 railroad overpass south of Madison. At least 11 vehicles have been damaged by vandals dropping debris from the overpass during the past two weekends. Fortunately, no one has been seriously injured in the incidents, including the driver of this car who suffered only minor injuries. (Staff photo by Patrick Foley)

BAC offers $500,000 'up front' for former high school

By DAVE WHALEY
Staff writer

The Granite City School District is being offered $500,000 in "up-front" cash from Belleville Area College for Granite City High School North.

Two offers made by BAC for purchase of the building and its contents, including the land it sits on, were made public by the district Tuesday.

"I THINK the public should be made aware of what is being offered by BAC going into the hearing," said board member Tom Mofsky.

Mack Johnson of Granite City had requested during the public comment part of the meeting the offers be made known to the public.

"I wouldn't want the board to lose any of the faith they gained from the people of this district in the last year," said Johnson, referring to the passage of the bond issue in November. "What is being offered should be out in the open so we know what we're talking about on Monday."

BAC HAS MADE two proposals to the district, both involving an immediate $500,000 cash payment. The first offer also includes $600,000 in tuition waivers over a 12-year period, of which $350,000 would go for tuition scholarships for graduating high school seniors and $250,000 for in-kind services for Granite City High School's junior and senior students.

If those waivers are not used up in the 12-year period, they would carry over into the future.

In addition, BAC would provide the district with space for an auto mechanics shop for five years.

"THAT WOULD be about the same amount of space we've had out there before, which is about 3,700 or 3,800 square feet," said Norman Owca, director of finance for the district.

The second offer, in addition to the $500,000 cash, would also include $50,000 a year for the next 10 years for a total cash amount of $1 million, and space for the vocational auto shop for five years.

"In either case, the district would keep 30 acres of land out there, meaning they (BAC) would get 38 acres," said Superintendent of Schools Frank Kraus. "We would keep all the land out there east of the tennis courts."

BOARD MEMBER Dewey Melton, who is not in favor of selling the property, suggested the board hold on a decision to sell and put it on the November ballot as an advisory question.

"I know a lot of people feel differently, but I don't see any pressure to sell it now without putting it before the people," Melton said. "They have already exercised their option to extend their lease, so why don't we wait?"

"I do see a problem financially," said Alan Crider. "We need the cash flow into this district, and if we wait until November it might be too late."

"WE HAVE A purpose on this board," said David Partney. "And if we don't make the right decision, the people will let us know at election time. They have already given us the authority to make the decision and I don't think it is a referendum issue. Let's either accept it or turn it down."

"I don't see their offers as hard and fast," Mofsky said. "I've heard the offers, but I don't know if they will put up for the automotive shop. We have nothing in writing."

Kraus said he intended to have offers in writing from BAC by the hearing Monday, which is scheduled for 7 p.m. at the high school auditorium.

PEOPLE WISHING to speak during the hearing should sign a sheet in the auditorium prior to the hearing. Kraus said each speaker will be limited to five minutes.

After the hearing, the board will likely call a special meeting for sometime before June 15 to make a decision on the sale.

No spirits for supermarkets, says Granite City Council

Despite appeals from Mayor Von Dee Cruse for further study, a divided Granite City Council voted 8 to 5 Tuesday night to keep the number of liquor licenses at their current levels.

As a result of the motion, liquor will not be sold in local supermarkets.

ALTHOUGH DISCUSSION of the liquor licenses was not mentioned on the agenda, 2nd Ward Alderman Sam Whitmer said the matter should be voted on.

"It's been two weeks since we had the public meeting on the liquor licenses," Whitmer said. "I think the people who came to the meeting are deserving of an answer."

Fourth Ward Alderman Sharon Perjak, who spearheaded the discussion on the liquor licenses, said no further action was taken on the possible increase because she understood that Cruse was going to appoint a committee of citizens to study the matter.

CRUSE AGREED more study should be done on the issue before bringing it to a vote.

"This is too important an issue to vote just yes or no," he said. "More study needs to be given to this."

Cruse said he doesn't believe any alderman who has already made up his mind has been fair.

ALDERMAN PAUL FISK, disagreed, saying he had given the matter a "fair shot."

"It's unfair of you (Cruse) to make the statement that we haven't given it a lot of thought. There were a lot of things brought up at the hearing."

Whitmer brought up the point that although the council members can regulate the number of liquor licenses, it is the liquor commissioner (Cruse), who regulates who gets a liquor license. So if the council approved an increase in liquor licenses, it would ultimately be up to Cruse whether or not to put liquor in the grocery stores.

"GIVE ME THAT authority and I'll take the heat!" Cruse said. "I'll give the matter a lot of study before I make my decision, too."

Third Ward Alderman Brett Hanke suggested Cruse devise a waiting list of liquor applicants and, through attrition, he could give the open licenses to grocery stores.

Fifth Ward Alderman Lloyd Bailey said he was in favor of awarding the liquor licenses to the grocery stores because liquor stores have carried grocery items for years.

"As long as the liquor stores are allowed to carry potato chips, butter and milk, why they're as happy as a lark," Bailey said. "But the minute you put the shoe on the other foot, they start complaining."

"I'd go for it [giving grocery stores liquor licenses] in a minute, because I got no mercy for them (small liquor stores)."

A ROLL CALL vote to keep the number of liquor licenses at their current levels was approved 8 to 5.

GC takes first step to hire city coordinator

By SUSAN SIGNAWE-WEICH
Staff writer

Granite City aldermen approved a motion 11 to 2 Tuesday night to create the position of city development coordinator.

Because of the motion, the city will enter into a joint effort with the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce to promote fiscal and commercial development throughout the city.

THE MOTION CAME after a presentation by James Pennkamp, executive vice president of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce. Pennkamp said the chamber is proud of what it has accomplished in the area of industrial development, but commercial and retail development has been "a thorn in the side."

Under the proposal, the city will foot the bill for the city coordinator's salary and fringe benefits. The coordinator will be a city employee, answerable to the mayor and City Council.

The chamber will incur expenses such as office space, secretarial support and office equipment. The chamber will also supply funds for program development.

THE COORDINATOR will be housed in the chamber office, so that he may work closely with chamber representatives.

Although the City Council did not set a salary for the coordinator, a figure between $30,000 and $35,000 has been discussed, according to Pennkamp.

Alderman Everett Morien motioned to place $30,000 in the budget for the coordinator's salary, but the move was not seconded.

ALDERMAN BRETT HANKE said

applicants would see the figure and then negotiate from there.

The only aldermen voting against the measure were Fred "Pat" Schuman, 2nd Ward, and John "Jeff" Worthen, 7th Ward.

Schuman said he has mixed feelings about the move.

"IF THIS IS such a hot idea, it seems like the businessmen would want to jump in," Schuman said. "They're (the businessmen) pretty close to their pockets."

"On the other hand, we have a city department head (Joe Miklovic, city comptroller) who's breaking his back, and we can't even hire a computer operator to help him."

Worthen said he was not against the idea of a coordinator, but said he would not vote in favor of the move until the city has a budget.

ALTHOUGH ALDERMAN SAM

Whitmer, 2nd Ward, voted in favor of the proposal, he said he wants to see results in one year.

"I've seen first-hand what has happened in the past," Whitmer said. "I want to see some movement, and I want to see the businessmen taking an interest in this."

"If I don't see some movement, I won't be voting in favor of this next year at budget time."

THOSE VOTING in favor of creating the position of city development coordinator include aldermen Morien, Sam Whitmer, Hanke, Paul Fisk, Phillips Miller, Sharon Perjak, Jake Vargian, Lloyd Bailey, Woodrow "Woody" Moad, Judy Whitaker and Michael Modrusic.

Fifth Ward Alderman Casner Skidish was absent from the meeting.

Commission recommends election reform measures

The Governor's Commission on Election Reform has delivered its report to Gov. James R. Thompson, outlining recommendations for changes in Illinois election laws and procedures.

Thompson commended former Govs. William Stratton and Samuel Shapiro, who co-chaired the commission and said he would review the recommendations of the 25-member commission.

"Recent elections have focused attention on areas of Illinois election law which require refinement and further definition. The voters of this state deserve to have a clear and fair election code," the governor said.

"Bill Stratton and Sam Shapiro have worked hard as co-chairmen of this commission. But it is the voters of this state who are the real beneficiaries. They have been well served by having these two former governors at the head of this commission," he said.

Highlights of the commission's report included the following recommendations and positions:

A recommendation to move the general primary election date from the third Tuesday in March to the second Tuesday in May. The later date would shorten the length of the campaign, move the petition filing deadline past the Christmas holidays and reduce the amount of campaigning in harsh winter weather.

A recommendation to move the date of the consolidated election from the first Tuesday in April to the second Tuesday in May.

Opposition to statewide re-registration due to the cost of such a procedure and the perception that minority groups would be harmed by this procedure.

A recommendation for the General Assembly to adopt uniform procedures for purge voting lists.

Opposition to public financing for gubernatorial elections, statewide elections, and members of the legislature.

Opposition to registration by mail.

A recommendation to choose at least two election judges in each precinct to take primary responsibility for the administrative duties of running the election.

A recommendation for the State Board of Elections to maintain a statewide, computerized registrar file that would provide standard, uniform information and eliminate duplicate registrations.

Opposition to election day registration.

"We welcomed the opportunity to serve on the commission," said Govs. Stratton and Shapiro in a joint statement. "We received nothing but great cooperation from election officials around Illinois. They gave us valuable advice and suggestions in our work."

"We were very pleased with the response from election officials and from the public as well," they said.

Other speakers include Carol Henrichs, an R.N. and diabetes instructor at SEMC, who will provide a general overview of the disease, including symptoms, management and complications of diabetes; and Michael Weaver, an SEMC pharmacist, discussing insulin and oral anti-diabetic agents.

For more information on these classes, interested persons may call SEMC Nursing Service at 798-3132.

Commencement indoors on Friday

Commencement exercises for Granite City High School will be tomorrow night at 8 p.m. inside the school gymnasium.

Original plans called for the graduation to be on the football field at the same time, and rain dates were scheduled for Saturday and Sunday.

But with rains falling all week, the district has decided to move the event indoors Friday. Each senior will receive four tickets for commencement.

Proceeds from the event will be contributed to the statewide POW/MIA "Run for Freedom" project, which is scheduled July 14 throughout Illinois.

A night battle with the Viet Cong 14 years ago has resulted in a long-overdue Bronze Star for a Vietnam veteran.

Sgt. 1st Class Larry Creek, Fort Leonard Wood, was presented the Bronze Star Medal for Valor by Maj. Gen. John H. Moellering, post-commanding general, in a recent ceremony at the U. S. Army training center near Waynesville, Mo.

A former Granite City resident, Creek was in Vietnam 14 years ago leading a team from Company B (Ranger) of the 75th Infantry in a night defensive position.

His team was probed by enemy forces and faced the choice of leaving the area versus possible capture or death at the hands of the Viet Cong.

To signal helicopters waiting to rescue his team, Creek removed some of the explosive from his Claymore mines. He then detonated the mines and burned the explosive as a signaling device.

Muzzle flashes from the team's rifles and small fires created from the mines' explosive contents were the only visual contact the helicopters had with the team as it fought forward for 1,000 meters to the place of contact.

Once in contact with the helicopters, Creek directed them to pick up the team and, at the same time, directed the helicopters' fire toward a small bunker, resulting in a tremendous explosion.

The Ranger team escaped without injury.

The sergeant said he did not know about the award until seeing a hometown news release several years ago. However, by that time his records had been destroyed in a fire at the St. Louis records center.

Creek credits Lt. Col. Wilbur H. Boutin, Jr., commander, 5th Battalion, 3rd Basic Training Brigade, in assisting him in finally being awarded the medal.

"It's great. I knew it was there," Creek said. "It's been 14 years since this happened and I appreciate getting the award now."

In awarding the medal, Moellering said, "It's a tremendous honor for me. I think if you look at the indicators (speaking of schools and awards) along the way, you could see this individual would turn out to be a pretty good infantryman."

Creek has served in the Army for 15 years and has been assigned with the 101st Airborne Division, the Berlin Brigade, Howe Military School and the 23rd Infantry Division, as well as at Fort Leonard Wood as the senior drill sergeant with Company D, 5th Battalion, 3rd Brigade.

Speaking of his former duties as a senior drill sergeant at the Missouri military training center, Creek said, "I enjoy it. It is definitely a challenge."

"The biggest thing is seeing what's been accomplished in the eight weeks a soldier is in training."

The serviceman was the Distinguished Honor Graduate of the Airborne Ranger Long Range Recon Patrol course and the Third Army Noncommissioned Officers Academy.

He also attended French Com-

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Frequently people who sustain a personal injury wonder whether they can recover from the person at fault. There are three aspects to consider in these types of cases: liability, damages, and the ability to collect from the defendant.

This article will attempt to define each of these terms in an effort to help injured parties determine whether they can successfully bring a personal injury suit.

When an attorney talks about liability, he is asking who is responsible for the accident. In order to recover damages, the injured party will usually have to demonstrate that the defendant is at least partially at fault. Keep in mind that Illinois is a comparative negligence state, and an injured person's recovery will be reduced based on the percentage of fault attributed to him.

If the plaintiff can show that someone failed to exercise reasonable care and thus was negligent, he has in most cases demonstrated liability. The next question is what are his damages. Another way of asking this is how badly was he hurt?

Sometimes people who contact this office are able to establish liability on the part of the defendant, but they were not injured badly. It is often not worth all the time, expense and aggravation to file suit when the injuries were not very substantial.

The final consideration is whether the injured plaintiff will ever be able to collect damages if he prevails in the case. Of course, if there is an insurance company providing coverage, the ultimate judgment will certainly be collectible. However, if the responsible party has no insurance, the plaintiff may never be able to collect on the judgment.

An example of this situation is where there is a car accident in which the defendant rear ends the plaintiff. Let's assume the party at fault has no insurance, and the plaintiff is severely injured. The plaintiff here may be able to establish liability and he may have significant damages, but can he collect on a judgment from the driver at fault? Frequently auto accident cases take two to three years to get to trial and cost a substantial amount of money to get ready for trial, and all of this time and expenditure may be in vain if the defendant has no insurance. Furthermore, even if the plaintiff wins at trial in this situation, the defendant without insurance will sometimes file bankruptcy and discharge the indebtedness.

Paper welcomes opposing views

Our views are not omniscient, our editorial strength is less than omnipotent, but we shall not waiver in our endeavor to honestly present our views on the issues that shape our community. A newspaper or an individual expressing an opinion—especially about government—is an essential part of democracy's preservation and only those with a dangerous case of tunnel vision would have it any other way. This newspaper will not shirk its obligation.

When a member of the community calls to complain about an editorial, it is disturbing. Certainly, we can take heat as well as give it. It is expected that some will disagree with stories or dispute their veracity. But to call to complain about an editorial is different.

We do not believe the assertion that "freedom of the press is limited to those who own one" and our actions have time after time proven our convictions.

Letters, issue after issue, appear on the editorial page next to our editorials. We print those letters, whether they agree or disagree with our views. This newspaper belongs to the communities it has devotedly served for 83 years and we intend to continue that time-honored tradition.

As Harry Golden once said, "Writing a letter to a newspaper editor is the easiest way to gain prestige in America."

Why, then, complain by telephone when a letter to the editor would be a welcome and appropriate response to an editorial? The only thing that makes sense is those who call to complain prefer their views were not set in type for the public to review perhaps they fear their ideas would not hold up in the light of public review. Such complaints are like sounding brass and tinkling cymbals.

Though to some it will seem like a personal affront, we shall continue to present our views as they should be presented—honestly, independently.

City coordinator is overdue

Like someone letting fresh air into a stuffy room, the Granite City Council's decision Tuesday to cooperate in hiring a coordinator to assist in the city's economic revitalization is a relief.

For years the city's economic situation, particularly downtown, seemed in a malaise and on the decline, save for a few optimistic members of the business community who refused to throw in the towel in the face of overwhelming odds—unemployment, inflation and apathy.

They fought the battles to coordinate Christmas events, to try to remove downtown parking meters to bolster the business community. They did not give up.

And now, as some have long hoped, the council has become involved in a high-profile, tangible effort to help bring economic life back into the city.

This joint effort of the council and the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce comes within a few weeks of the election of Mayor Von Dee Cruse and speaks well of his and the council's resolve to turn Granite City around—to head it in an economically viable direction.

The coordinator alone, of course, cannot do what is needed to bring back the city's vitality. One man has little chance of moving a mountain. But with the city's backing, with the chamber's backing, and with the backing of a receptive business community willing to clasp the lifeline handed to it, the first firm step has been taken on the long road to recovery.

Consolidation a gamble for education board

By Jeff Brody

SPRINGFIELD — The state Board of Education is going to gamble this year that the need for total reform of education programs and finance will be strong enough to allow passage of the most significant consolidation legislation yet introduced.

And backing the board's gamble is a newly completed study that, for the first time, links student achievement to school size in Illinois.

That study concludes, unequivocally, that "in the hundreds of very small high schools in Illinois, students are suffering a significant loss in opportunity to learn when the courses available to them are compared with those available to students in high schools with enrollments of over 500 pupils."

"We have conclusive evidence that school size affects student achievement," state School Superintendent Ted Sanders told the state board Thursday. "To provide adequate educational opportunities for our students... Illinois must undertake a major effort to reorganize its schools."

Consolidation has always been a touchy political time bomb in Illinois, made more complex by the existence of a dual system of school district organization. Some areas in the state are served by unit districts, which provide K-12 education. Other areas are served by separate elementary and high school districts (called "dual" districts).

In the 10 years between 1946 and 1956, the number of Illinois school districts was reduced by consolidation from more than 11,000 to just over 2,200. But in the last 30 years, consolidation has reduced the number of districts by only another 1,200.

Next year, for the first time ever, the number of local school districts in Illinois will be less than 1,000.

But only 448 of those districts are unit districts, considered the most cost-efficient because they require just one administrative structure for grades K-12. Dual districts have separate administrations for elementary and high school grades.

There are 721 high schools in the state, and more than half, 397, have fewer than 500 students. In fact, 205 high schools have fewer than 200 students.

The state study found that there is a core curriculum of about 55 course choices in every Illinois high school. But the variety of courses increases dramatically as enrollment increases, peaking at about 300 different courses.

Only 2 percent of the high schools with fewer than 210 students offer four years of a foreign language; only 12 percent offer calculus or advanced geometry; and only 8 percent offer remedial math.

The result of this limitation on courses available to students in small high schools shows up in standard achievement test scores, the board staff discovered. In a test of educational progress administered by the state, high school juniors in schools smaller than 500 or larger than 1,280 scored significantly lower on science, math, geometry and reading tests than did juniors in the medium-size high schools.

The same performance was noted on the American College Test, one of the two standard college entrance exams.

High schools with fewer than 215 students, the report concluded,

"are so small that they cannot provide their students with the range and depth of learning opportunities they need and deserve, and their students demonstrate the lowest achievement."

The legislative proposals before the board, set for final consideration later this month, will call for the development of a school district reorganization plan that presumes unit districts and high school enrollment of at least 500 students.

Districts not meeting those and other criteria would have to show why exceptions should be made for them. Sanders said districts that are found to be "necessarily small" should be given special funding to assure their students have learning opportunities more equal to those of other Illinois students.

The legislation also would change property tax rates to equalize the revenue available between unit and dual districts. Dual districts now have access to more property tax money because both districts in a given area are able to tax for education, operations, transportation and other purposes. Their combined rates are often higher than those allowed for unit districts.

"Illinois has essentially permitted nature to take its course in determining the number and types of school districts most appropriate for serving its children," the study concluded. "It becomes apparent that uniform access to both adequate financial support and reasonable educational quality is not permitted by the present organization of our school districts."

"The state can no longer afford to let nature take its course, or even to rely on incentives as the means for achieving a more appropriate organizational pattern."

Postscript I: The United States isn't the only country with lottery games. Canada has a Lotto with 52 numbers. Then there are lotteries in Israel, Germany, France, Bulgaria, Italy, Romania, Poland and Russia. And, if Illinois Lotto players think the odds would be tough with a 48-number game, they should look at Lotto in Italy. The chances there is to pick the five winning numbers in 10.

Postscript II: Growth of the Illinois lottery system has been described as "phenomenal." It now has 2,900 computerized ticket sales outlets throughout the state.

Mixed response to lottery proposal

By Toby McDaniel

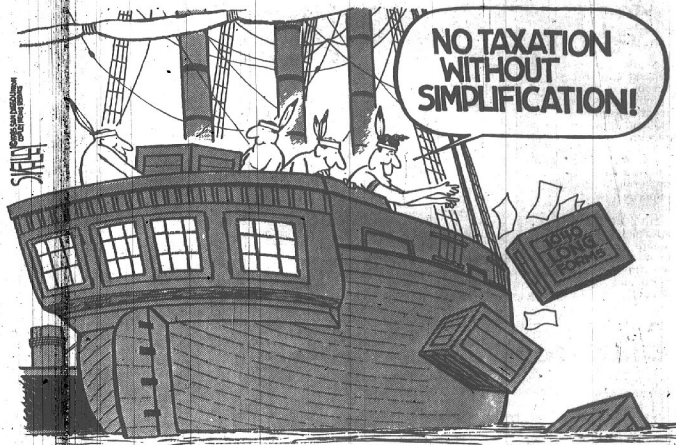

SPRINGFIELD — There's a mixed response to the Illinois lottery's proposal to add 12 new pick numbers from 44 to 48, which would make a player's dream of winning the weekly multimillion-dollar prize next to impossible. Feedback from Lotto players is generally negative, a lottery spokesman says, most say they don't want to play against bigger odds.

However, the state contends Lotto needs bigger, more elusive jackpots to maintain sales levels. "As the prize grows," says the lottery's Dale Arvidson, "so goes sales." (Fifty percent of Lotto sales go for prize money.)

If Illinois does push its Lotto game numbers to 48, it will join the highest-odds weekly lottery games in the nation. New York, one of 12 states with Lotto games, offers a 48-number game plus two others in which players select six out of 44 or 40 numbers. Rhode Island's Lotto has 47 numbers, but players select only four. In New Jersey, players pick six numbers out of 36.

Also, Lotto jackpots vary widely from state to state. Weekly grand prizes start as low as $250,000 and run into the millions.

Youth activities

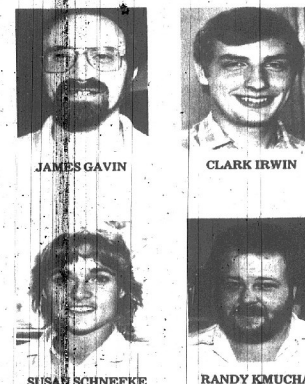

These people were asked Wednesday what types of activities can youth-oriented organizations and other groups provide for the youth of this city in addition to what is available now?

James Gavin, Granite City
"They definitely need a place to go for various activities. We, as parents, sometimes neglect our children's needs. There are a lot of things for young people to do in this city, but they just don't take advantage of them. They need guidance from their parents to help them take advantage of what is available."

Clark Irwin, Granite City
"I think there's already an adequate number of activities in town, but they pass them up to spend time at fast-food places. I'm new in town and I know of many things for young people to do, they just don't take advantage of them."

Susan Schnefke, Granite City
"I think children expect to be entertained and there's enough to do, but many activities are not publicized enough. The teenagers just don't try hard enough to find things to do."

Randy Kmucha, Granite City
"There's plenty to do, but there's a lack of public awareness and a lack of motivation to take advantage of what's available."

Urges consumer support of Public Utilities Act

To the Editor:
As director of the Illinois Citizens Utility Board, from the 21st district, I am appealing to the consumers of our district on a most significant event that happened last week in Springfield.

The newly-written Public Utilities Act came up for a vote in the Senate in the form of Senate Bill 1021, a bill introduced by the bi-partisan Joint Committee on Public Utilities Regulation after several weeks of public testimony by regulators, utility and industry reps, and consumers.

While the bill was not everything that our consumer groups wanted, it was what we considered the best compromise that we could get out of committee, in light of the forceful lobbying by the utility companies.

On Tuesday, May 21, hundreds of consumers converged on Springfield and lobbied for S.B. 1021. Constituents from districts 55, 56 and 57 asked Sens. Watson, Vadalabene and Hall to support S.B. 1021. Hall and Vadalabene promised support but Watson hedged. From the galleries of the Senate we watched Hall and Vadalabene vote in favor and Watson vote against S.B. 1021 in a very close second reading of the bill. Sen. Prescott Bloom of Peoria introduced some amendments that were very unfavorable to consumers, and while all of these amendments were defeated with the help of negative votes from Hall and Vadalabene, Sen. Watson voted down the line with the vote companies in favor of those amendments. On Thursday, May 23, the bill passed out of the Senate.

In two weeks, the bill comes up in the House and we need for our concerned consumers to contact their representatives, Wolf, McPike, Stephens, Friedrich, Flynn and Young, and ask them to support a strong consumer-friendly Public Utilities Act.

Madison residents oppose industrial rezoning

To the Editor:
An open letter to Mayor John Bellico and the aldermen of the city of Madison, Illinois.

Reference: Rezoning of property now occupied by Illinois Pacific Coast Transportation Co.

The residents surrounding the Illinois Pacific Coast Transportation Co. are very interested in the way each of you will vote at the council meeting on the rezoning of this property from residential to industrial.

Several of us have already voiced our objection at the Zoning Board meeting held Tuesday, May 28, and have let our opinions be known to you, Mayor Bellico and to the aldermen.

During your campaign you said you wanted to improve our neighborhood in the city of Madison. Do you really believe an industrial zone in the center of a residential zone is an improvement?

Would you, Mr. Mayor, or any of the aldermen, want to live in or have a section of your residential area rezoned industrial within a block of your homes or directly abutting your property?

We feel this issue will let us know if the feeling of the citizens will truly be considered while you are our mayor and aldermen.

You have each been sent a copy of this letter and a letter from an insurance agency stating the problem we will have obtaining insurance and the excessive rates we will have to pay if we can find an insurance company to insure our homes.

We also have a copy of this letter to be presented to you at the meeting with 45 signatures of residents in this area.

To whom do you owe allegiance, if not to the citizens you are elected to represent?

Utilities act will lower bills

To the Editor:
What the Illinois Legislature does in the next month will affect our pocketbooks for the next decade.

The issue is utility bills. Illinoisans suffer the highest electric rates in the Midwest. Gas bills have increased at twice the rate of income. New telephone "access fees" threaten to force thousands off the phone system.

The General Assembly is about to rewrite the Public Utilities Act. It's the first overhaul since 1921. The utilities have launched an expensive campaign to get the recommendations of the bipartisan Joint Committee on Public Utilities legislation, embodied in Senate Bill 1021.

The legislation includes some much-needed reforms at the Illinois Commerce Commission (which sets utility rates) to make the ICC more open and accountable. SB 1021 also protects consumers from utility company mistakes. One key provision is the requirement that utility shareholders absorb part of the cost of overbuilding power plants ("excess capacity"). Since ratepayers now pick up the whole tab, this provision alone will save the average Illinois family hundreds of dollars.

The Illinois Senate passed SB 1021. It now will be considered by the House. The Citizens Utility Board urges all consumers to write their state representative (State Capitol, Springfield, 62706) in support of SB 1021.

The bill doesn't go as far as CUB had hoped, but it is a critical first step in providing Illinois ratepayers with some long overdue relief from soaring utility bills.

Madison approves reappointments, fire school seminars

By DONNA KIMBRO
Staff writer

Madison City Council approved sending two firemen to a special fire school seminar at the University of Illinois and approved reappointments recommended by Mayor John Bellcarr at the Tuesday night council meeting.

Firemen Michael Foley and Richard Robbins will attend the informational fire seminar at the university and will be granted $175 expense money.

MAYOR BELLCARR said, "Being a former fireman, I know what this means to the fire fighting department. It has been a long time since we sent any firemen to school to learn new techniques in fighting fires."

Council members also agreed to a recommendation by the mayor to reappoint Porter Cauley to the Police Pension Board for a term from May 1, 1985, to April 30, 1987, and for Roosevelt Taylor and Curtis Bosworth to become members of the Zoning Board of Appeals. Taylor will serve until Aug. 26, 1987, and Bosworth is to serve until Aug. 26, 1988.

The mayor said with the approval of these two men, the Zoning Board can now function as a seven-man board.

DUE TO THE recent illness of the city attorney, the mayor requested and was granted an extension of time to discuss and reconsider appointees in the fire department. He will make his final recommendation at the June 18 meeting.

After complaints by Madison residents relating to a change in the bus routes of Bi-State Transit, the mayor assured the council he talked with a spokesman at the bus company, and there will be no changes in the routes. Buses will continue to keep their routes on Madison avenue.

The mayor also emphasized the senior citizen bus service is not being discontinued as some people have said. He addressed a large assemblage of residents in the council room and said he will meet with the recreation department Thursday to formulate a five-member board which will be responsible to him and the council in conjunction with the service.

JOHN DUTKO, building inspector, spoke on the pending demolition of the Greenhall building. He explained that the demolition is in legal process, and when the documents are signed in Edwardsville, they will be forwarded to the city of Madison.

Eleven permits were issued in a two-week period, and the demolition documents for a building at 811 West Washington St. were received. Dutko said the condemnation proceedings were approved for a house at 920 Iowa St., which was destroyed by fire some time ago.

The aldermen approved bills in the amount of $62,725. ALDERMAN William Gushoff suggested the city apply for funds for highways, bridge and structure repairs as the result of a letter from Rep. Sam Wolf. Wolf informed the council he endorsed the bill, which provides money for grants to cities who qualify for the aid.

After the meeting, the mayor said he is quite proud of the work that Ray Edwards, president of the Madison Businessmen's Association, has done in preparation for the weekend grand-opening festivities in Madison.

If any also proud that the Pace family is moving their hardware business to Madison and pleased with the opening of Voloshin's Family Restaurant, Johnny's Movies to Go, Crustie Printing and the beauty salon owned by Betty Cromer, and the grand opening of the First National Bank of Madison. The city administration is and will continue to cooperate with business places in the city, Gushoff commented.

IN CONCLUSION, the mayor said he is looking forward to this weekend's activities and will visit each business place.

Performance still on for Shrine Circus

Ainad Shrine plans to hold its circus tonight, weather permitting, according to John W. Craver, Shrine assistant administrator.

Craver said Wednesday evening it is regretful that rain caused the cancellation of Wednesday evening's performance. However, Craver said the Shrine has added a fifth show in Belleville. Those with cancelled tickets for a Granite City performance can redeem them in Belleville, he said.

Belleville circus performances are slated for Saturday, June 8, at 2:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., and on Sunday, June 9, at 1 p.m., 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Those with questions about the Thursday evening performance in Granite City should address them to the Ainad Temple at 674-1870. The Shrine is widely known for its outstanding contributions of medical care for crippled and burned children. The Shrine is continuing efforts on behalf of such children.

Development funds released to SIUE

Gov. James R. Thompson has announced that he has released more than $3.4 million in development funds for Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Thompson also announced the release of $2.75 million for projects in Wood River. Approximately $4.9 million will be spent constructing a new Dental Education Clinic Facility on the Alton campus of Southern Illinois University. The funds will cover planning, site improvements and construction expenses for the 30,000 square-foot facility, which will feature office and clinical space, as well as area for general use. The new facility will replace the existing clinic building constructed in 1940. The new building will contain 72 dental training areas.

Construction of the Dental Education Clinic Facility will commence in July 1985 and be completed in October 1987.

Thompson also approved a Capital Development Board request for $390,800 in general revenue funds for rehabilitation of utility lines and a plaza between Buildings II and III on the Edwardsville campus. The project calls for underground utility lines to be encased in concrete to prevent damage from water seepage. The plaza area will be filled and compacted to compensate for settling effects.

Additionally, the governor released $169,527 for energy conservation remodeling on the Edwardsville campus. The Illinois Department of Energy and Natural Resources obtained a $90,768 federal grant from the U.S. Department of Energy to help finance this project, with a match of $78,769 in General Revenue Funds. Construction is set to begin in October 1985 and will be completed by March 1986.

Funding for Wood River includes the release of $2.5 million in Coal Technology Development Assistance funds. The funds will be used for the completion of the Reliability, Availability and Maintenance Phase program of the Allis-Chalmers Kilgas project. This phase of the program is designed to upgrade the coal gasification system to promote efficiency. Thompson also released $275,027 in Capital Development Bond funds for flood control and drainage improvements in Wood River.

Sergeant's promotion still pending

A Madison County jail sergeant, who has filed suit against the sheriff's office has yet to receive a promised promotion.

Sgt. Joyce Rathmann filed a discrimination suit May 7 alleging that she had applied for the jail lieutenant's post a year ago, was qualified, but was denied the promotion because of her gender.

The suit seeks more than $15,000 in damages and other relief.

After the suit was filed, Sheriff Emil Toffant, who said he was unaware of the suit at the time, notified Rathmann that she would be a lieutenant effective May 15.

Contacted this week, Toffant said he had not promoted Rathmann to lieutenant yet on the advice of legal counsel. He added that he had not been served with the suit yet.

Toffant earlier said Rathmann was to be promoted May 15 because another lieutenant was needed at the jail.

Neither Rathmann nor her attorney, Jack Strellis of Waterloo, could be reached for comment.

GCC schedules wine-making course

Granite City Center (GCC) of Belleville Area College (BAC) is offering a five-week, non-credit course this summer for those who want to learn to make their own wine.

The class, Art of Winemaking, will begin at 6 p.m. Tuesday, June 18, room 315, Granite City Center, 4950 Maryville Road, Granite City.

There will be a $35 fee, which will include materials and supplies. George Heth, GCC's biology instructor, will teach the course.

"The winemaking course, a hobby-oriented course, and microbiology are kind of connected," Heth said. "Winemaking was an art and now it is a science. We will basically be trying to follow the techniques of today's professional wine makers."

"The course will give people an idea of how it is to be a little of wine maker," he said.

For information and to register, students may call Granite City Center, 931-0600.

BAC sets nursing assistant class

Belleville Area College will offer classes leading to a certificate in nursing assistance this summer.

Upon completion of the six-week course (HRO 105), students will be certified as nursing assistants by the Illinois Dept. of Public Health.

Students in the class will learn personal care of the patient, how to take vital signs, isolation techniques and body mechanics.

The class starts June 10, and will be from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, room 1511.

STEEL COIL RELOADED. A 36,000-pound coil of galvanized steel is reloaded onto the truck from which it broke loose and rolled off at 19th and Benton streets Wednesday afternoon. Two large tow trucks lift the coil as the truck backs under it. The driver of the northbound truck, Jeff Ross of Troy, Ill., said he stopped at the corner and began to make a left turn onto 19th Street when he hit his brakes after noticing a car coming from his right. A chain holding the steel snapped and the coil rolled off of the truck. The incident was reported at 12:50 p.m. and traffic was interrupted for several hours. (Staff photo by Patrick Foley)

Two rob Granite City man of $24

Robert Barnes of the 2400 block of Bryan Avenue told police May 30 he was robbed by a young man and woman while standing on the sidewalk at 324 State St.

Barnes said the woman approached and started pushing him. She told him if he didn't hand over his wallet, her companion would kill him. Barnes said neither of the two displayed a weapon.

Before taking Barnes' wallet, the woman punched him in the stomach several times and attempted to hit him in the groin. After she took his wallet, the woman then attempted to remove Barnes' rings and watch. When Barnes continued to resist, the two left toward the alley. Barnes followed and watched them remove $24 from his wallet. After they discarded the wallet, he retrieved it.

Barnes described the woman as tall, thin, 20 years old, with dark blonde or brown shoulder-length hair, wearing a blue t-shirt and blue jeans. The man was six feet tall, thin, 20 years old, with dark hair combed straight back, wearing blue jeans and a blue t-shirt.

Relief coming for jobless steelworkers

By JACK V. VENITIGLIA
Executive Editor

Laid-off steelworkers in the Quad-City area could benefit from a share of $700,000 targeted to retrain 600 to 800 of the state's unemployed steel workers.

At American Steel Foundries, Granite City plant manager Bill Donovan said the news was good for those who were laid off by the presently closed plant. He said 650 employees, many of them steel workers, were laid off in 1982 when the plant closed. In 1979, the plant employed 1,500 workers, he said.

AT GRANITE CITY Steel, public relations director Dan Hines said the company's employment force fluctuates, but has been relatively stable at 1,800.

Robin S. Spivey, spokeswoman for the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, Springfield, said the money is meant to help steel workers who have lost their jobs due to plant closings, long plant shutdowns or layoffs.

DCCA will administer the money, which is available through the Job Training Partnership Act. According to information provided by the governor's office, DCCA will subcontract with JTPA service providers to help dislocated workers by assessing their skills, providing job search help, and offering classroom and on-the-job training.

ACCORDING TO Skiles, a determination of how many people will be helped in each area of the state is yet to be determined.

In a release, Gov. James Thompson stated, "The steel industry has been badly hurt by changing economic conditions. These... funds will greatly help laid-off steel workers in their search for new jobs."

DCCA Director Michael T. Woelfel added, "DCCA will meet with steel unions and local JTPA representatives to determine exactly how this money can best be used. The program is targeted to start in mid-August and will run for one year."

UNDER THE ACT, $10 million in JTPA funds is available in 19 states, with up to $700,000 available to each state.

Granite School Board considers 'no smoking' policy

By DAVE WHALEY
Staff writer

The Granite City School Board will consider a policy which would prohibit smoking at the high school.

The board's policy committee met June 3 to consider the smoking policy, as well as policies on discipline and corporal punishment.

THE COMMITTEE voted 2-1 to prohibit smoking at the campus, but it was decided at the board meeting Tuesday to have the matter voted on by the entire board.

(High school principal) Gil (Walmsley) asked for us to hold on that so that any punishments for smoking could be revised," said David Partney of the committee.

"I think this is something the whole board could consider," said Tom Miesky. "Let's let everyone know that we are considering abolishing smoking altogether at the high school and take it up at the next meeting. I'd like to give everybody a chance to think about it."

PRESENT BOARD policy allows for a designated smoking area on school grounds for students age 18 and over. According to a legal opinion offered by Charles Given, assistant legal advisor for the Illinois State Board of Education, that policy is legal in light of Illinois Revised Statutes, Chapter 23, Section 2357, which "prohibits the sale or furnishing of tobacco in any of its forms to any minor under 18 years of age."

"I don't really know how we could control it now," said board member Monroe Worthen. "We have fewer administrators there than we did before, so it would be very hard to enforce. But we have kids out there around Madison Avenue, and one of them is going to get clobbered by a car someday."

"And we almost lost that building once. I don't know if it was caused by a careless cigarette or not, but it was some good work by our fire department that saved it."

OTHER POLICIES adopted by the board included one on corporal punishment which could exempt a student from such punishment if a parent or guardian has submitted, on an appropriate form, a written request that corporal punishment not be used. The written request must be renewed each school year if the parent wants to extend this prohibition.

Parents filing out such a form: Will understand that their child may be excluded from class until they (parents) have made themselves available for a conference.

MAY BE REQUIRED to have a meeting with an administrator at the student's school. Options to corporal punishment would be discussed at that time.

Must realize it is their child's responsibility to notify each of his teachers of any corporal punishment denial form.

A system of notification shall be established such building to inform certified personnel of those students whose parents have presented a request.

ALTERNATIVES to corporal punishment include individual school disciplinary action, in-school detention or suspension, suspension and expulsion.

All 19 teachers who were honorably dismissed by the Granite City School Board in March were recalled June 3.

Recalled were: Larry Talbot, vocational auto at high school; Gene Baker, high school English; Mary Perdue-Tapp, high school English; Margaret Lyons, high school resource; Elaine Parish, unassigned; Marilyn Perline, unassigned middle primary; Sandra DeMoulin, Frohardt upper primary; Marjorie Schmitt, Marshall upper primary; Stella Davenport, Marshall upper primary; Gay Young, Marshall upper intermediate; Jeanette Singleton, Maryville middle primary; Charlotte Gauen, Mitchell upper primary; Janet Wilson, Niedringhaus upper primary; Sue Grable, Niedringhaus learning center; Nancy Orris, Parkview upper primary; John Svoboda, Parkview middle intermediate; Barbara Varadian, Parkview upper intermediate; Jacob Varadian, Parkview middle intermediate; and Brenda Keene, Wilson upper primary.

The recalls brings the amount of teachers in the district back above the critical "401" line. According to the teachers' contract, if 401 or more teachers are employed by the district on Aug. 15, the current contract is good through Dec. 31, meaning the 1985-86 school year will open on time.

Negotiations on salaries and insurance will open on or before July 31, but if the 401 level is maintained, no strike could happen until Dec. 31.

GC WOMAN ALLEGES MAN HITS HER AND DAUGHTER

Mary Schermer, 3103 Kirkpatrick Homes, told police June 3, a former friend came to her home and beat her and also struck her 12-year-old daughter. Schermer said the man came to pick up some personal items and allegedly began to curse her daughter.

Schermer alleged seeing the man pull her daughter's hair, then throw the girl on the bed and start hitting her. When the mother tried to intervene, the man allegedly began pushing her around. The assailant left when police were called.

Kramer: Act now to get Fair's spinoff

By JUDY TAPLIN

Communities in Illinois should be gearing up now to reap economic and tourism benefits from the proposed 1992 World's Fair, John Kramer, the Fair's director, told a group in Collinsville Monday night.

Kramer was the dinner speaker at a two-day conference of the Illinois Development Council at the Hilton.

THE WORLD'S Fair is to be held in Chicago. But satellite sites are planned around the state. The idea is to nab the tourists as they pass through on their way to the Windy City.

Kramer said two-thirds of the Fair's visitors will come from a 50-mile radius of Chicago. Fair planners are currently estimating that there will be 45 million visits to the event (one person attending the Fair on four separate days would count as four visits), but that attendance projections are to be revised upward as 1992 approaches.

Although the communities will apparently get little financial help in becoming satellite fair sites, they will be able to cash in on the Fair's marketing and publicity efforts.

THE MARKETING, which will be on an international scale, is scheduled to begin this fall if the state legislature approves development costs for the Fair.

The satellite sites will mainly be long-term ventures, although there can also be short-term and fair-term projects.

Kramer said he does not believe a proposed referendum by the Coalition for Political Honesty will affect plans for the Fair.

The Coalition wants voters in Illinois to decide whether or not they want their tax money to support the event.

Kramer said he is not afraid of such a referendum, "but I don't think the legislature would go along with it."

He said the legislature is elected to do what is best for the people; government by referendum "is not particularly good government," he told the group.

KRAMER said he does not believe a decision on the World's Fair can wait until the next election — when the Coalition's referendum might be on the ballot — because of the lead time needed for its planning.

Those present Monday night received a draft copy of the criteria for selection of satellite World's Fair sites.

On a preliminary list, Cahokia Mounds Historic Site was listed as being located in Cahokia; Fairmount Park Racetrack was excluded from a list of sporting events; and St. Louis International Raceway was also not mentioned.

Ron Presson, Collinsville's interim tourism director, has said those three sites are this city's best drawing cards to attract persons on their way to the World's Fair.

Nine potential satellite sites were listed in the draft as prototypes. The two listed for downstate Illinois were Quincy and Champaign/Urbana.

KRAMER said the ticket cost for a day at the World's Fair is expected to be about $13, substantially lower than the $19 charged at the Disney amusement parks.

Once inside the fair, most entertainment would be free, although world class sports events and special entertainment would carry extra charges, he said.

Kramer said the Fair would take advantage of the 1992 Olympics, which will be going on in Europe for two weeks during the six months of the Chicago event.

The Fair's costs will be paid by exhibitors and through TV rights, admission fees, corporate sponsorships, certain revenues from satellite sites, among others, he said.

The up-front financing will come through private sector investment and, in the case of permanent facilities, through some state investment, Kramer told the group.

Monthly charge assessed on local telephone service

Residence and single-line business telephone customers began paying a $1 monthly line charge beginning June 1 as part of a plan to keep telephone rates reasonably priced in the future.

The charge is part of a Federal Communications Commission plan to price local and long distance calls closer to the cost of providing the service. It replaced part of the subsidy for local telephone lines historically built into out-of-state long distance rates. This will allow long distance rates to decrease by about five percent.

"Eventual savings in rates for all customers—including savings for customers who don't make long distance calls—will more than offset the $1 charge," according to Fred K. Konrad, Illinois Bell assistant vice president.

Illinois Bell's multi-line business customers have been paying a $3.45 line charge since May 1984. This charge is $6 in many other states where the cost of providing service is greater than in Illinois, Konrad said.

In 1982, regulators recognized that competition and new technology required an end to the monopoly system which overpriced long distance calls to subsidize local lines. This subsidy, begun in 1930, grew to its highest point last year, when about 40 cents of every long distance dollar supported local service.

In 1984, this subsidy amounted to $9.5 billion nationwide, Konrad noted.

"Cost-based pricing will prevent the widespread loss of customers who today pay more than their actual service costs," Konrad said. "Without fair rates, these customers are encouraged to bypass the public telephone system with private facilities. By keeping customers on the public system, we can spread the fixed costs of operating this system over more people and keep local rates lower than if bypass occurred."

"This subsidy system also penalizes customers in states with lower service costs, such as Illinois," he said. "Through long distance charges, Illinois callers pay more in local subsidies than is returned to this state's customers. The difference—$65 million in 1984—is a subsidy from Illinois callers to southern and western states with higher operating costs. The line charge helps end this burdensome system."

The new charge will not increase Illinois Bell's revenue.

"The approximate $40 million we'll receive from the charge will replace a dollar for dollar—revenue we receive today from long distance callers to support local rates," Konrad said.

BODY TALK

By DR. CHARLES KING
CHIROPRACTIC PHYSICIAN

DEAR DR. KING:

Over the past few months I have been suffering from headaches that come on towards the end of the day. I work in a business office with computer terminals. Do you think these could be causing my headaches?

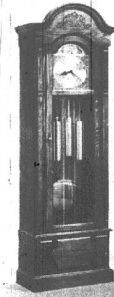

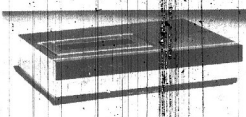

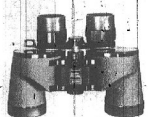

DEAR HEADACHE SUFFERER:

It is possible the terminals contribute to your headaches but, my first suggestion would be to contact an ophthalmologist for a thorough eye exam. You may need glasses or a change in your existing prescription. After your eyes have been examined and the problem remains, chiropractic can determine if the headaches are due to pinched nerves or muscular tension.

Rep. Wolf wins long fight to aid local tax appraisers

State Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Granite City, this week won a long fought battle for funding for a permanent technical assistance program for local property tax appraisers.

Wolf won House approval for House Bill 362 to provide funding for the Office of Appraisals within the Department of Revenue. The office was established to employ tax appraisal specialists to assist local appraisers on difficult to appraise industrial and commercial properties.

"The funding for this office has been quite a fight," Wolf said. "The success of the bill in the house is a real victory for local governments and the taxpayer."

The Office of Appraisal was created in 1979, but has remained unfunded because of opposition from the administration. In recent years, challenges to commercial property tax assessments in two counties, including Madison, have resulted in significant tax revenue losses for schools and local governments.

"We are seeing a whole new group of tax specialists whose sole business is to challenge local units of government on industrial and commercial property tax appraisals," Wolf explained.

"Unfortunately, our local assessors simply don't have the funds or expertise to battle these high-powered tax consultants. As a result, local governments are forced to make a deal to save what tax money they can, and homeowners must shoulder the tax burden to make up for industrial and/or commercial property owners who don't pay their fair share of property taxes," he said.

Wolf noted the fees for these tax consultants are simply an additional tax write off for the businesses involved, thus it does not cost them anything to challenge their assessments.

"The local assessors are simply outmanned and outgunned," Wolf said. "If properly funded, the Office of Appraisals, however, could even the odds."

Under House Bill 362, the Office of Appraisals would hire three tax appraisal specialists whose expertise would be available to counties of less than 1 million in population.

"It is the small counties like Madison that are hurt most by any delay in tax revenues," Wolf said. "Our schools, especially, are struggling to meet their budget to provide the best quality education possible."

"With the state's valuable assistance in any judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings, the local government officials can meet these tax consultants one on one."

The legislation passed the House on a 64-40 vote and it is now in the Senate awaiting action. "I look forward to seeing this on the governor's desk very soon," Wolf said. "We can talk about building Illinois while outside interests are attempting to bankrupt our local government."

Sentenced to enjoy county for night

William and Vivian Simpson, 2434 Granite City, Ill., were stopped by Tennessee Highway Patrol Sgt. Mayford Ramsey near the Townsend, Tenn., entrance to Great Smoky Mountains National Park Wednesday afternoon (May 22).

They were "sentenced" to the spot to being overnight guests of businesses in Blount County, part of the local Tourist of the Day Program being held in connection with National Tourism Week.

The apprehension of Bill Simpson turned to smiles after Sgt. Ramsey examined his driver's license and advised Simpson he had done nothing wrong but was being stopped to be invited to spend the night as guests of area businesses.

Host for the Day Fred L. Waggoner, a past president of the Blount County Chamber of Commerce, member of the Smoky Mountain Visitors Bureau, and owner of Chilhowee Trailer Sales, then stepped up to give the Simpsons some of the gifts awaiting them. Waggoner welcomed the guests on behalf of the on behalf of the Blount County Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the event.

The Simpsons won't have night's stay at the Little River Village Campground and dinner at the Hearth and Kettle Restaurant, both in Townsend.

The Simpsons' traveling companions, Homer and Doris Blumenstock of 2231 Woodland Ave., Granite City, were also invited to spend the night at guests of Little River Village Campground.

Simpson is retired from Night Hawk Freight Lines while Blumenstock is a retired teacher of auto mechanics in a vocational school.

Their picture was made for The Maryville-Alcoa Daily Times which also forwarded a photograph and word of their good fortune to The Press-Record.

Other gifts presented the Simpson family included a $20 gift certificate good at any of the more than 70 stores in the Foothills Mall, a 50th anniversary Great Smoky Mountains National Park poster by Townsend artists Lee and Dolores Roberson, tickets to Tuckaleechee Caverns which is known as the greatest sight under the Smokies, a large package of post cards and related materials from Smocraft, and tickets for horseback riding at Davy Crockett Stables.

Blount County is in East Tennessee, just south of Knoxville and bordering North Carolina. Maryville, the county seat, has a twin city of Alcoa from which the Aluminum Company of America (ALCOA) adopted its acronym. Blount County includes Townsend, a small town located at one of the main entrances to Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

Blount is named for William Blount, first governor of the territory south of the River Ohio, and Maryville bears the name of his wife, Mary. Townsend, developed around the turn of the century as a logging town, was named for the president of the logging firm.

The Blount entrance at Townsend is the closest to world famous Cades Cove, a mountain valley of more than 4,000 acres in which some of the structure and atmosphere of pioneer days have been preserved in a historical exhibit. Wildlife is plentiful with some of the approximately 800 deer living in the cove visible, along with wild turkeys, in the early morning and late afternoon hours.

Townsend is also the entrance to the Little River Gorge area of the park, one of the most scenic streams in the Southeast. The Blount County beauty and the park is less developed, offering much of its natural beauty and is known as the "Peaceful Side of the Smokies."

Located in the Tennessee Valley between the Smokies and the Cumberland, Blount County has an elevation ranging from just under 850 feet above sea level in the cove visible, to more than 5,500 feet in the Smokies which cover about one fifth of the entire county. TVA's great lakes of the South are sprinkled about the area, offering excellent fishing and boating.

Maryville and Alcoa are 15 miles south of Knoxville with Alcoa being adjacent to Knoxville's McGhee Tyson Airport.

The city of Alcoa, with three large ALCOA plants located here, is known as the Aluminum Center of the World. The Levi Strauss facilities are the second largest of the firm's worldwide operations and its largest which manufactures corduroy garments. Pink marble quarried in Blount County has been widely used in major buildings in Washington, D. C., and New York, making Tennessee one of the largest producers of dimension marble in the nation.

Sam Houston spent his boyhood here and his mother is buried in this county which is also the birthplace of the mother of Gen. John J. "Black Jack" Pershing who headed the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe in World War I.

Houston is best known here for teaching school at the log cabin five miles northeast of Maryville where the reconstructed log cabin still stands. As a youth of 19 and armed with brass knuckles to keep order, Houston, taught school here in 1812 in the cabin built in 1794, two years before Tennessee became a state. Students ranged from six to 60 years, tuition being $8 per term, payable in corn, calico and cash.

Flagged by debts from his bar bills and those of gifts for his women friends, Houston enlisted in the War of 1812 by taking a silver star from the drum head on Maryville's main street. He followed his idol, Gen. Andrew Jackson, into battle against the Creeks.

Houston was Governor and United States Congressman in Tennessee, President and General of the Army of the Republic of Texas and Governor and United States Senator in the State of Texas. One of the nation's 10 largest cities bears his name.

Entering its 13th season at Townsend is the Smoky Mountain Passion Play which produces the Passion Play, the story of Jesus, on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Fridays, and the story of Paul, on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. The dramas performances are presented at 8:45 p.m. at the outdoor amphitheater in Townsend. Tickets may be purchased at the gate.

Located within 500 miles of 76 percent of the nation's population, the Smokies is the nation's most visited national park having 8.5 million visits in 1984, about twice the number of the next highest park.

The park is 34 miles long, 19 miles wide and contains 16 peaks higher than 6,000 feet. There are more than 130 species of native trees in the park, more than in the whole of Europe. There are 1,200 kinds of plants, shrubs and flowering trees and wildflowers which include more than 50 varieties of lilies.

Maryville is the home of Maryville College, a fully-accredited, four-year liberal arts college, founded in 1819. It is affiliated with the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. The 600 students come from 30 states and foreign countries.

Tennessee is preparing for Homecoming '86 which was kicked off by Gov. Lamar Alexander on the inauguration of his second term two years ago. The native Maryvillian described it as a giant statewide celebration of who we are and how we got to be that way. Tennesseans celebrating being Tennesseans, part reunion, part history lesson, and part good old-fashioned hoe-down. Statewide co-chairmen of the event are Minnie Pearl of Grand Ole Opry fame and Alex Haley, Pulitzer Prize winning author of "Roots."

More than 300 cities and communities in Tennessee have already been busy seeking out their roots and looking toward their future. Each community was asked to form a heritage committee to study the origin of the communities and their names, a vision committee to look at where the community is going and where it ought to go, a project committee to decide on some projects that reflect something unique about the town, and a celebration committee responsible for organizing and putting on a Homecoming Celebration in 1986.

And the entire nation is invited to share in enjoying this year-long event.

A motion to remove Granite City's 5 percent utility tax on telephone bills died for lack of a second vote Tuesday night at a council meeting.

Second Ward Alderman Fred "Pat" Schuman motioned that the tax be removed. Schuman said he made the motion because residents mandated they were not in favor of the tax. Residents voted on April 2 to discontinue the tax by a 7.395 to 2.197 margin.

THE PETITION drive and subsequent placement of the issue on the April ballot was led by Mayor Von Dee/Cruse. However, Cruse's vote is not counted unless there is a tie vote among the aldermen.

The tax brings in approximately $250,000 in revenue to the city per year.

After the council meeting, several of the aldermen commented why they left the motion alone.

ALDERMAN BRETT Hanke, 3rd Ward, said he did not second the move because of the "indivisible manner" in which the motion was stated. He said the motion was in essence "highly" some of the other council members.

Hanke said his personal feelings differ from those of the residents. "I personally am against removing the tax because I think the city operates better with the money," Hanke said. "But I have been mandated by the people to remove the tax, so that is the sentiment I will support."

HANKE SAID The timing is not right to remove the tax.

Sixth Ward Alderman Woodrow "Woody" Wood said he was surprised Schuman made the move without prior discussion with the aldermen.

He said he does not have a reason why he did not second the vote, but said he will vote to remove the tax later.

THE TIMING of the vote, also influenced three other aldermen to take no action to second the motion.

Aldermen Sam Whitmer, Jake Varadani and Jeff Worthen all said they want a good view of the budget before they vote to take action.

They agreed their lack of action Tuesday does not necessarily mean they will vote against removing the tax at a later date.

State officials developing water sampling network

A new statewide sampling network for monitoring groundwater resources has been announced by the Illinois Department of Energy and Natural Resources (ENR) and the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA). The network, now in its initial stages of development, is based on a year-long study by the Illinois State Water Survey, a division of ENR.

According to the study, nearly half of the state's residential population depends upon underground aquifers for drinking water, including approximately 1,700 Illinois communities. More than one billion gallons of water are withdrawn from such aquifers each day for residential, commercial and agricultural uses.

ENR Director Don Etchison and IEPA Director Rich Carlson said throughout the country there is increased awareness and concern with groundwater, and the need for its protection. They warned that pollutants in groundwater could result in loss of water supplies for agriculture, industry and the residential population.

"This study cost $82,000 and took over a year to complete," Etchison said. "Illinois contains 8,300 square miles of shallow aquifers that are highly susceptible to contamination, and this study recommends a comprehensive plan to monitor them, as well as other principal aquifers in the state."

"The establishment of a monitoring program is the first step toward creating quality standards for surface water," Carlson said. "IEPA and ENR are working together to ensure that the state has a first-class system of protecting groundwater."

Currently, as mandated in the Safe Water Drinking Act, IEPA monitors 3,400 public water-supply wells in the state for water-quality indicators. However, ENR and IEPA have determined that the extent of chemical and physical information currently collected on the state's groundwater resources is not adequate to cover all necessary water quality concerns.

The network will use existing public water-supply wells and, through a scheduled monitoring and analysis program, will assess conditions in major aquifers and document significant changes. For the first time, the uniform and complete data necessary to understand groundwater resources statewide would be compiled. The monitoring network would also provide a mechanism for detection and correction of contamination problems. The implementation of the proposed network would prevent or minimize serious degradation of Illinois' groundwater resources.

Under the proposed network, the IEPA would be responsible for the sampling and analysis of all water samples collected, and the Water Survey would be responsible for network data collection and interpretation. These two agencies, in cooperation with other appropriate state and federal departments, would determine the need for a design of specialized studies in cases where potential problems are identified by the network.

Details of the network proposal are outlined in two reports by ENR, "A Groundwater Monitoring Network for Illinois," which is a condensed version of the scientific report entitled, "Design of a Statewide Groundwater Monitoring Network for Illinois," Doc. No. 85/02. The second report provided detailed research analysis of the problem. Both publications may be obtained free from the ENR Clearinghouse by calling 1-800-252-8955.

State fund balance reaches record level

Comptroller Roland W. Burris has reported the available balance in the state's general funds at the end of May was $69.1 million. Burris said the continued strong growth in revenues pushed the balance to another record level, eclipsing the record $91 million general funds balance of the previous month.

Total general fund revenues for 17 months of fiscal 1985 were $9.558 billion, an increase of $719 million or 8.1 percent over total revenues for the same period in fiscal 1984. General funds revenues from state sources were $8.095 billion, $315 million or 6.8 percent above comparable revenue in fiscal 1984. The revenues growth included a 20.5 percent increase in sales tax revenues, a 20.2 percent increase in corporate revenues and lottery fund transfers up 43.1 percent. Some of the increases, totaling $912 million, were offset by decreases of $397 million, including a 9.5 percent drop in individual income tax revenues.

Revenues from federal sources were $1.463 billion, an increase of $204 million or 16.2 percent over comparable revenues for 17 months of fiscal 1984.

Total general funds expenditures in 17 months of fiscal 1985 were $9.095 billion, $439 million or 5.1 percent above total spending for 17 months of the previous fiscal year. Spending growth included a $231 million increase in public aid grants, plus increases in other grant categories and refunds.

Lecture series to highlight Opera Theater anniversary

John Drummond, former director of the Edinburgh International Festival and presently head of music for the BBC in London, will present a series of three talks on the 1985 Opera Theatre of Saint Louis. This series, entitled "Getting the Acts Together," will focus on the elements that contribute to making an opera: words, design, production and performance.

Given in cooperation with Mark Twain Bancshares, the three talks will be held at Mark Twain Bank, 8820 Ladue Road, St. Louis, on Wednesday, June 12; Tuesday, June 18; and Thursday, June 20, at 5:30 p.m. The series, which includes complimentary cocktails and hors d'oeuvres, costs $40; individual lectures are $15 each. Reservations must be made in advance by writing or calling Opera Theatre of Saint Louis, P.O. Box 12148, St. Louis, Mo., 63119, 1-314-461-0171.

Last year, during the 1984 Opera Theatre season, Drummond presented a four-part series entitled "The Composer's Mind."

In the first talk, "What's it all about, Wolfgang?" (Wednesday, June 18), Drummond will investigate what makes a good libretto.

"Here's looking at you, and here's you looking at us" is the second talk (Tuesday, June 18). In this session Drummond will explore whether the designer or producer can do whatever they want, or whether essential requirements in opera which must be observed?

The final talk, "The sounds of music" (Thursday, June 20), will explore how the demands of a production affect the musicians who perform it.

Drummond was graduated from Cambridge with a first-class honors degree; from 1958 to 1977 he worked for the BBC in various departments in radio and television, developing and producing music and arts programs, including the Tortelier Master Classes, "Omnibus" programs on Diaghilev and Katherine Fortner, and the 1966 Leeds Piano Competition which won the Best

The day coincides with the anniversary of the Battle of Gallipoli, the first modern use of amphibious warfare in which Anzac troops took the brunt of the fighting and suffered heavy casualties.

During the celebrations, Petty Officer Paz and others on the USS Texas participated in a wreath laying ceremony and took part in Brisbane's Anzac Parade. He and his fellow crewmembers were, then, honored at an Anzac Day luncheon, sponsored by the Australian Returned Servicemen's League.

Senate adopts Vadalabene's resolutions

Three resolutions, sponsored by Sen. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, have been adopted by the Illinois Senate.

Senate Joint Resolution 16 would urge the United States Congress to support on-the-job training for veterans.

"These brave men and women have risked their lives for their country. In many cases, they have given an arm or a leg to protect the United States, and then they come home to the unemployment line," Vadalabene said.

"It's just not fair or right that these brave folks don't have some kind of job training waiting for them. Training these individuals would be a way for the government to show them its gratitude for all they have given to protect our freedom," he said.

Senate Joint Resolution 23 would urge Congress to re-establish May 30 as the official Memorial Day holiday.

"May 30 was the traditional date for honoring our war dead dating back to the Civil War. It should remain so," the senator said.

"Memorial Day is, indeed, a patriotically sacred holiday which was founded in 1868. 1985 marks the 117th anniversary of the declaration by General John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, who issued the declaration designating the day as one in which the graves of soldiers would be decorated — originally the declaration was to honor the Civil War dead; now the day is observed as a dedication to the memory of all war dead.

"To make the day a rotating holiday is similar to making the Fourth of July a rotating holiday. May 30 was the designated day 117 years ago, and it should remain so," he said.

Senate Resolution 104 urges the president and Congress to pursue a Strategic Defense Initiative in order to promote peace and eliminate the threat of war, and endorses the concept of "Mutual Assured Survival."

"People throughout the nation, throughout the world, have demonstrated that peace is what they want. John Kennedy said, 'We have the power to make this the best generation of mankind in the history of the world — or to make it the last,'" Vadalabene said.

MAL ALLEGES BATTERY
James Rutter of 2005 Sken St., Madison, told police June 3, he was beaten by two men in front of 2015 Washington Ave. Rutter reported being in an argument with one of the men earlier that day and when he went to the man's house, the man allegedly pushed him to the ground. Another man reportedly beat Rutter, causing injuries to his left eye and nose.

GC seniors to give demands list to town board

By JACK C. VENTIMIGLIA
Executive Editor

Desired services will be listed and submitted by senior citizens at the next Granite City Township Board meeting, June 18.

Board members requested the list following a presentation by John Petish Sr., Granite City, a senior citizen representing a group of disgruntled seniors at Tuesday's meeting. Among their complaints was lack of the township building's availability to seniors.

Control of the Granite City Township Building ultimately rests in the hands of the people and the board, some board members learned at the meeting. However, as of August 1977, the building's operations were delegated by the board to Township Supervisor Nelson "Nellie" Hagnauer.

Some board members were unaware of the resolution and believed their jobs consisted only of auditing expenditures. Not so, according to Trustee Woodrow "Woody" Moad, who said the township's trustees are responsible for the township's operations, including the building.

Moad's contentions were supported earlier in the day by George Miller, president of the Township

Association of Illinois.

The discussion followed the presentation by Petish, who said seniors do not get to use the building much at night, and it is closed Saturdays and Sundays. Furthermore, he charged a comparison with other townships shows Granite City Township lacking in services provided for seniors. He urged formation of a senior citizen's council to look into programs for seniors.

Trustee Sharon Perjak noted Hagnauer, the township supervisor, was not present for the meeting to discuss use of the building for seniors and for a proposed Teen Town program.

William W. Schooley, township attorney, suggested a committee be formed to look into Teen Town, to which Perjak replied she thought it would be enough simply to schedule the event. Schooley reiterated his advice to form a committee, but added, "I don't speak for Mr. Hagnauer."

Moad brought up that Petish was one of those who had tried to speak to Hagnauer, but the township supervisor reportedly refused to speak with Petish about the seniors' concerns.

"I think the people should go back to running the town hall the way it used to be," Moad said, and members of the crowd of approximately 50 applauded.

Trustee Sam Whitmer said he did not recall Petish being appointed by the board to speak to Hagnauer. He said Hagnauer met to discuss the seniors' concerns with Juanita Crowley, president, Granite City Senior Council. He added the council gave Hagnauer permission to regulate the use of the township building and "that's the way I think it should be."

Trustees Paul Fisk, Lloyd Bailey and Brett Hanke noted discontent in the building's operation was obvious by the seniors' display. Hanke requested the seniors present a written request by the next board meeting of what they want done.

After the meeting, Petish said a list would be drafted.

Venice graduation honors 32

By VALERIE EVENDEN
Staff writer

Nearly 400 family members and friends attended the Venice High School commencement exercises May 30 during which 32 seniors were presented their high school diplomas by Wilbert Chisler, president of the Venice Board of Education.

Tammy King, class valedictorian and a member of the Venice Chapter of the National Honor Society, offered the valedictory address.

Cassandra White, salutatorian and president of the 1985 senior class, welcomed the students and guests. She also is a member of the National Honor Society.

The commencement address was given by Dr. Julius Dix, Assistant Superintendent for secondary education of the St. Louis Public Schools. The widely known educator urged the graduates to continue their efforts forward in achieving their future goals in life.

Congratulations were offered the senior class members by Venice Superintendent of Schools Robert N. Vickers, who also greeted their families.

Musical selections were presented by the Youth Choir of Mount Nebo Missionary Baptist Church. Graduates entered the Venice High School gymnasium to the "Aide March" by Verdi, played by Roger Mofford, pianist. She also performed "Pomp and Circumstance" by Elgar as the recessional selection.

The Rev. Jerome Jackson, pastor of Mount Nebo Missionary Baptist Church, gave the invocation and benediction.

Road rule class slated June 19

Secretary of State Jim Edgar, in cooperation with the Granite City Council of Senior Citizens, is offering a Rules of the Road review course for all citizens in this area.

The purpose is to help applicants pass the Illinois driver license renewal examination. It updates drivers on current rules of the road, explains the vision and driving ability examinations, and prepares applicants for the general written and road sign examination.

The review course will be held at the Granite City Township Building, 2000 Delmar Ave., on Wednesday, June 19, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

The course is free to everyone, of any age, who wishes to attend. For more information, people may contact Clyde Myers, 876-3981.

Jackson heads Red Cross unit

The Tri-City Chapter of the American Red Cross, located at the St. Louis Area Support Center (formerly the Granite City Army Depot), has elected the following officers to serve one year:

Robert Jackson, chairman; David Nolan, vice chairman; and Dolores Vogler, secretary-treasurer.

Board members elected to serve three-year terms are E.F. Reiske, Joe Williams, Walter Shuman, Russell Porter, Donell Bricey, Ole Jones, Charles Meyer, Steve Hendrickson, Al Hudzik, Mithi Hogan, Al Steinhauer, John Novotny, Kenneth Whaley, William Smith, Mary Lou Griffin, Linda Irwin, Mark Goldenberg, Brian Konzen, Douglas Ackerman, Elmer Dehn, Donna Dempsey, Ed Juncosa, Elsie Maylath, Elizabeth Briggs and Vivian Gilchott.

Due to a shortage of funds this year, services have been somewhat curtailed. Direct funds have been generated by local firms and individuals to help keep the local chapter operating this year.

Some of the functions of the local office are 24-hour service to the military, blood services and teaching first-aid, swimming and adapted athletics (handicapped swim).

Also, the chapter assists in one-family burnouts and, in the event of any disaster, volunteers are ready to help at any hour, a spokesman said.

Probation, jail ordered on plea to theft charge

James Graham, 21, of 1508 Kirkpatrick Homes has been sentenced to serve 30 months probation and six months in the county jail for his guilty plea May 6 to a charge of theft of over $300 value. In addition, Madison County Associate Judge Charles Romani assessed $95 in court costs.

Graham was charged April 1 with burglary after an investigation by Granite City police.

PROWLING CHARGES SET AGAINST MADISON MEN

Donald L. Douglas, 17, of 1637 Third St., Madison, and Douglas W. Wimlish, 21, of Sixth Street, Madison, were arrested in the 2100 block of Delmar Avenue May 31 and charged with prowling.

Police observed two men near the corner of 21st and South and they fled west on 21st and south down the alley between Delmar and Cleveland Blvd. Those arrested were hiding in bushes near 2109 Delmar Ave.

FERC decision promises savings to gas customers

Gov. James R. Thompson recently said the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's (FERC) decision to ban discrimination by the giant pipeline corporations in the transportation of natural gas promises major savings for consumers.

"The decision by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to prohibit discrimination in transportation means that natural prices for all consumers will reflect true market conditions (rather than regulation and price fixing agreements)," the governor said.

"FERC has indicated it will adopt a policy on gas transportation that mirrors what I, along with the Illinois Commerce Commission, have been advocating for in Congress, in the General Assembly and in the courts for two and a half years. With this decision, we can claim a major victory today," he said.

FERC has proposed a rule be established to prohibit gas pipelines from giving select customers special price treatment when transporting gas for them. It brings significant pressure to bear on pipeline corporations to move away from the monopolistic system of the past, which kept prices high, into the light of a competitive marketplace that will allow for more appropriate pricing, Thompson said.

The proposed rule includes the following provisions:

- Non-discrimination in gas transportation programs. Once a pipeline company agrees to transport purchased gas for one customer, it will have to open its transportation system to all customers who wish the pipeline to transport gas purchased in the market.

- Allow local gas distribution companies to purchase large portions of their supplies on the open market, beginning with 25 percent the first year and up to 100 percent in four years.

- Quick certification for new service to allow substantial increases in competition between pipelines.

"The action opens the way for consumers to have access to less expensive supplies of natural gas," Thompson said.

Public comments on the proposed rule will be accepted through July 15. The rule could take effect Jan. 1, 1986.

Venice math teacher in ISU honors project

Margie McGarrahan, a Venice Grade School mathematics teacher, is among 25 teachers from Illinois who have been selected to participate in a year-long honors project for outstanding teachers of elementary school mathematics in Illinois.

The program will take place at Illinois State University at Normal for an intensive six-week session beginning Sunday, June 9. The project is designed both to honor the teachers and to update them in mathematics content and teaching methods related to microcomputers, data analysis and measurement.

This year's activities are sponsored by ISU's mathematics department and the National Science Foundation.

Coursework during the six-week session and also a three-week session in the summer of 1986 will feature computing, problem solving and applications.

Other project activities will continue through December 1986, focusing on a sharing of project ideas with teachers in the local school districts.

Participants receive a $2,000 fellowship stipend and a room and board allowance for the summer coursework, plus summers. They also receive a travel allowance to attend the sessions and 16 free semester hours of graduate credit from Illinois State University.

Project co-directors at ISU are Professor Carol Thornton and Associate Professor Benny Tucker.

Sutker, chairman of the Democratic State Control Committee of Illinois; Bruce Cook and Joseph Krause, State Central committee members of Madison County; State Sen. Vince Demuzio; State Sen. Matthew 10:8 "...freely you have received, freely give."

One of the most prominent teachings of the Bible is that of giving. In order for us to truly give, we can never think of giving as a duty. For the very moment we begin to do our "duty," we have the sensation of being compelled to do it. Then we give and do not always want to give, and certainly are not giving freely.

Giving is a privilege. God loves a cheerful giver. When we understand that we are pleasing our Heavenly Father, because we give, all giving brings us joy. In this understanding we can give to the unthankful, the undeserving, and ungratefully, without any remorse whatsoever.

Our nature to give freely reflects the nature of God. And that pleases Him! Start giving freely. Today.

Robertson signs with Cards' rookie club

By ALAN L. GERSTENECKER
Sports Editor

ST. LOUIS — Mike Robertson, the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville baseball standout and a 1980 graduate of Granite City North High School, signed Wednesday with the St. Louis Baseball Cardinals.

Robertson signed with the Redbirds during a 4 p.m. ceremony at the Cardinal office at 250 Stadium Plaza. He will report to the Cardinals' Johnson City, Tenn., rookie farm club on June 11.

Robertson, who played center field and shortstop for the Cougars last season, was drafted in the 15th round of the pro draft Wednesday. The son of Ed Robertson and Myra Cook, Robertson will play in the rookie Appalachian League.

Twenty-three years old, he was notified at home Wednesday by Cardinal scout Tom McCormack, St. Louis Midwest scouting supervisor.

"It was about 10:30 when Mr. McCormack called," Robertson said. "I had hoped that I'd be drafted. I thought I might. My coach (SIUE's Bo Collins) said he thought I had a good chance and so did my teammates, but I wasn't counting on anything."

And what were Robertson's reactions when he learned that he'd been taken in the 15th round?

"A THUNDER" it was great," Robertson said in excitable voice. "I just hope I can produce, earn a contract for the spring."

Robertson was taking everything in stride, but Karen, his wife of nine months, expressed a little more emotion.

"I cried," said the former Karen Bischoff. "I cried when he called. I was so happy."

Mrs. Robertson received the call at Union Electric in St. Louis, where she works.

Mrs. Robertson tentatively plans to live in Tennessee with her husband while he plays for the Cardinals. Whether she'll travel south with him next week or wait for a later date still hasn't been decided.

The Johnson City team debuts on June 21 against Pulaski. Robertson's season there will be 70 games long and will conclude on Aug. 31.

Robertson, who both bats and throws right-handed, was drafted by the Cards' as an outfielder, McCormack said. Although, he may see some action at first or even third base.

At 6-feet 2-inches and 185 pounds, Robertson is a strong person. The trait is immediately obvious and one of the things that most impressed McCormack.

"HE'S A FINE physical specimen," McCormack said. "He's got good size, he can run well and he hits the college pitching well enough. We thought enough of him to sign him. We'll have to wait and see how he does."

McCormack said he saw Robertson play on four separate occasions at SIUE. It was Robertson's first season with the Cougars. He batted .335, swatted eight home runs and accumulated a slugging percentage of .579.

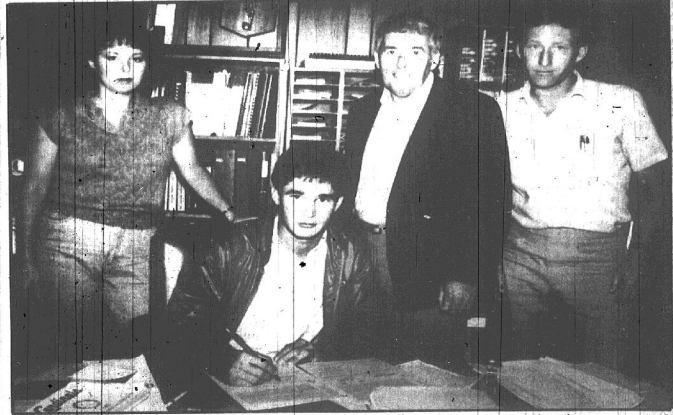

Prior to attending SIUE, Robertson played at SIU-Carbondale, for two seasons between 1980 and 1982. It was there that Rich Hacker, now the coach at Johnson City, saw him.

"I saw Mike while watching a Saluki game. He was a freshman then, but he impressed me enough then that I knew I wanted to keep an eye on him, watch to see how he developed," Hacker said. "I think the Cards' made a good pick in the 15th round."

Hacker, incidentally, is from Belleville.

Robertson and his wife live in rural Granite City, at least for now.

"All I can do is pack up and get ready to head down there. I don't know what to expect. I don't know if I'll hit .250 or .300. All I can do is go down there concentrate and do my best."

Endurance race at SLIR Saturday, Sunday

Racing For The Enduring Spirit

By GREGG OCHOA

FAIRMONT CITY — Steve DeBrecht hopes for better fortunes in his second professional race.

DeBrecht, of St. Louis will be among the field this weekend at St. Louis International Raceway, located on Route 202 just outside Madison, kicks off its professional season with the Firehawk Endurance Championship.

The six-hour endurance race begins with practice and qualifying rounds on Saturday, June 8. Sunday's action features a one-hour sprint car race for Compact Series cars. The endurance race will start at noon.

Individual tickets are priced at $10. The Firehawk Endurance is the second in a series of seven races. The first was held in Sebring, Fla., and the last will be held in New York.

DeBrecht, who sells import cars for a living, was leading the field in the first race, however, he was out of the competition after his transmission went out.

He and teammate Jocko Cunningham of San Francisco had completed 59 laps.

DeBrecht, 25, will again be driving his Saab 900 Turbo and no doubt be chasing Skip Gunnell and Scott Flanders of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., winners for the first endurance race.

"WE'LL BE looking to do much better here and win the race," a confident DeBrecht said Tuesday.

DeBrecht, vice-president and general manager of Debrecht Motorsports, has been active in auto racing since age 16. He holds several amateur titles and track records, including one at St. Louis International Raceway.

Endurance racing is unique in that there are no set amount of laps a team of drivers are required to complete for a victory.

In addition, the cars used in the event or similar to street models. The only real difference is the exhaust system has been removed for competition.

THE CARS burn regular unleaded fuel and are provided with tires for the race. During the race, cars will average approximately 80 miles per hour (125 mph on the straight-aways).

Cars racing in the Sports and Touring Class include Camaros, Firebirds, Fiero GTs, to name a few.

"The people who come to these races can relate to the cars," DeBrecht said, "because they might be similar to the ones they drove to the track."

The field for the six-hour race will include 60 cars who will earn spots based on qualifying time. In all, SLIR officials estimate that as many as 100 cars will be competing in the two races.

"QUALIFYING can be quite deceptive," DeBrecht said. (Drivers) will be running their cars on a different level. By watching qualifying you won't necessarily be able to tell who the favorite will be."

Endurance racing is game of strategy more than any other form of motor sports. Drivers will rely on handling and vehicle performance rather than raw speed.

"The initial action usually takes place the first two hours while everyone tries to establish themselves on the course," DeBrecht said.

"However, you can really see the race starting to take shape much later."

DeBrecht said the key to race lies in the pits. DeBrecht's five-man pit crew will be under the supervision of Jim Durbin.

"He's really the one who runs the show. He trains the and decides what equipment to use."

Pit stops will normally take between two and two-and-a-half minutes depending how much maintenance is needed. For example, DeBrecht said, in that amount of time brakes and tires can be replaced.

Cars are not limited to a number of pit stops and there are no gallon restrictions in the amount of fuel that can be used.

THE FIREHAWK series is the first of its kind sponsored by the tire company. The event is designed as a showcase for Firestone's GT and 2-660 performance street radial tires.

The weekend will be worth $69,400 in prize money for the two races.

While the race is a long one — more than twice as long as the average Indianapolis 500 — fans watching the race are urged to use different viewing habits.

"The real key is mobility," said Frank Valk, director of public relations at SLIR.

"UNLIKE a football or baseball game where you have to sit in one place, the secret is to watch this race for different points on the track."

The Firehawk Endurance will be first of seven major professional races at St. Louis International Raceway this summer.

"The people who saw the track the first time will be surprised," Valk said. "It is a lot more dressed up."

Valk said a truck hospital, covered garages and expanded seating all have been added in recent weeks.

"There is also lot more grass growing."

Lancers Play Today

East bombs Cahokia, advance

By ALAN L. GERSTENECKER

GRANITE CITY — Granite City High School's Class AA Sectional baseball championship game Monday between Belleville East and Cahokia was like many other title games.

Commonly associated with championship games are tough battles, two teams fighting tooth and nail to be called the best of the area. But here at Varsity Field it was a different story. One quite different.

One that lacked the excitement and fervor of a title game. This one was a blowout.

THE EAST Lancers had their way with the Comanches as they breezed to a 18-1 landslide victory. A victory that took only four and a half innings for the misery to end. It was the Lancers' only five-inning 10-run rule game of the season.

Ironically, it was the Comanches who took an early lead. Cahokia scored its only run in the top of the first to take a one-run lead.

The Lancers easily recouped in their half of the first and then went on to take a 5-1 lead after the initial stanza.

But things didn't quit there.

BELEVILLE East picked up four more in the second, eight more in the third and then yet another in the fourth as it amassed its commanding lead.

Meanwhile, Lancer pitcher Rich Lockwood was having his way with the Cahokia lineup, including power hitter Chris Egner whom he struck out twice during the afternoon game. Egner ended the season with a .353 average. The hard-throwing Lockwood threw a three hitter, striking out six and walking four.

The turning point in the game, says East coach Larry Patton, was an error the Comanches committed in the line which allowed the Lancers to take the lead.

Whitaker named veep of NWCA committee

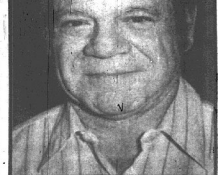

At a recent meeting of the National Wrestling Coaches Association, Walt Whitaker, who is serving his third year on the executive committee of the organization, has named vice president of the high school division.

Whitaker, currently Granite City High School's assistant wrestling coach, is one of four high school representatives in the country serving on this committee.

During the same meeting the Warrior assistant coach was given a 25-year service award from the association, denoting his 25 years of service as a coach and contributor to the sport of wrestling.

Whitaker, 51, also will be giving a week-long wrestling camp in Central City, Neb., where he was invited as a clinic director by former Granite City High coach Pete Robinson, who is now coach in Nebraska.

The executive committee of the National Wrestling Coaches Association is composed of college coaches from each NCAA district and four high school coaches from their respective areas.

The association provides services for wrestling through a national publication, clinic films, sponsoring overseas exchange teams, lobbying for legislation on rules and providing leadership to its members throughout the country.

Quartermouse, Morris Also Win

Knepper wins third feature

By JOE SENTER

GRANITE CITY — Steve Quartermouse, Arnie Knepper and Charlie Morris were feature winners at Tri-City Speedway Friday on the oval quarter-mile track.

Quartermouse, from Cottage Hills near Alton, made it two feature wins in a row as he powered his Camaro to the sportsman's victory.

Starting on the front row next to Jake Seets, Quartermouse took the lead at the green flag. He and Seets battled for 11 laps until Mike Young spun out, which brought out the yellow caution flag.

As the race resumed after the restart, Seets dropped out of contention and Quartermouse coasted on for the win. Charlie Day finished second, ahead of Young, third, and Ed Kunz, fourth.

Old-timer Knepper, from Belleville won the "Mighty Midget" feature event in his Chevy-powered V-6. Starting in eighth place, it took the Indy car veteran two laps to take over the lead. However, Knepper didn't have an easy time of it as Jeff Lee, driving a VW-powered Midget, was hot on his tail. Knepper went on for the win, though, with Lee second, Scott Weyant in third and Gary Byers fourth.

Heat races went to Gene "Stooge" Weyant and Shannon

Finely while the trophy dash was won by Knepper. It was Knepper's third feature win in a row.

Morris, driving his No. 13, bomber car, was an easy winner as he breezed to victory in that feature event. Morris also won his heat race. Dave Hiearty was second with Larry Martin and Jim Wilson third and fourth respectively.

Mighty Midgets, sportsmen's and bombers will be racing every Friday night. There will be a special World of Outlaws regional winged-sprint Car race on Tuesday, June 11. The event was originally scheduled for June 12, but was changed due to a scheduling conflict at a Kansas City racetrack.

Horseshoe Lake 'alive' with Free Fishing Days activities

GRANITE CITY — Horseshoe Lake, located south of Granite City, is one of 17 sites throughout the state which will host fishing clinics, fish fries and provide a variety of information and services during Illinois' first Free Fishing Days, June 7-10.

According to Lynn A. Wright, site superintendent at Horseshoe Lake, the Roxana Fly and Baitcasting Club will sponsor a casting contest and the Mid-States Bass Anglers of Belleville will sponsor demonstration on how to make an artificial lure and fish. Other highlights include a fishing derby and a live fish tank display by Department of Conservation biologist Charlie Marbut of Greenville.

Also, Wright says, various area marine dealers will display the latest boats and boating equipment.

The local office of the Department of Conservation, Lynn says, will sponsor a fishing derby. Persons may compete in three age groups: the junior division, 16 and under; the women's 17 and older; and the open division for persons 17 and older. Rods and reels will be awarded as prizes for the derby winners.

Also Tony Albright, a Zebco representative, and outdoor sports editors of various newspapers are scheduled to make an appearance during the four-day session.

In addition to all the other activities, the local DOC office will sponsor a fish fry and a barbecue at the main park area.

Although Free Fishing days are four days long, June 7-10, the programmed activities will run only Saturday and Sunday, June 8 and 9, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Persons seeking further information about activities this weekend at Horseshoe Lake should call Wright at 931-0270.

Free fishing days is designed to stimulate more interest in fishing in Illinois by allowing resident and non-residents to fish free during the four-day period. Fishing is free throughout the state, but special activities are slated for only 17 regional sites. The Free Fishing Days will complement the ongoing National Fishing Week.

State fish records set

State records for the brown bullhead and the hybrid striped bass both tumbled this spring less than a year after the previous records had been established, the Illinois Department of Conservation reported.

Both of the record fish were caught on the same lakes that produced the past champions.

Andrea Herzog, a grade schooler from Clinton, broke the brown bullhead record April 14 with a two-pound, nine ounce catch hooked at Weldon Springs Lake in DeWitt County.

Herzog used a Zebco spincast rig with nightcrawler. The new record measured 16 inches long with an 11-inch girth. The old record of two pounds, six ounces was set by John S. Peters II on June 1, 1984 at the same lake.

The new hybrid striped bass record was set by Nick A. Koltchuk of Orland Park who hooked his 14-pound, 14 ounce prize on May 14 at Collins Lake in Grundy County. He was using a Garcia reel, an ugly stick and nitcrazer. The record fish measured 30 inches long with a 22.5 inch girth.

The old record of 12 pounds, 15 ounces was held by Jeffrey Specht of Wilmington who had also caught the fish at Collins Lake on May 31, 1984.

Frog hunting season opens June 15

Illinois' frog hunting season starts June 15 and lasts through Aug. 31, according to the seasons established by the Department of Conservation.

Eight bullfrogs may be taken daily with a possession limit of 16.

A sport fishing license is required for frogging. State law, however, prohibits the use of firearms, air guns, gas guns or commercial fishing devices such as hoop nets, traps or seines.

Most froggers use a small spear—or gig—but it is also legal to take frogs by hand or with a pole-and-line.

Waterfowl hunters to release ducks

Migratory Waterfowl Hunters, Inc. will resume its Duck Release Program Sunday, June 9.

Five-hundred, eight-week old mallard ducks will be picked up from Whistling Wings, Inc. at Hanover June 8 and hauled to the Department of Conservation office.

The mallards will be banded with colored Migratory Waterfowl Hunters bands and released on state refuges and private areas in Calhoun and Jersey counties.

The ducks will be health certified and dew claw clipped in accordance to federal regulations.

The cost of the program is $1,750, or $3.50 per duck. Most of money was raised through proceeds from a fish fry in Batchtown and from private donations.

The Migratory Waterfowl Hunters plan to release ducks on an annual basis and welcomes donations. Contributions can be sent to: Migratory Waterfowl Hunters, P.O. Box "C," Godfrey, Ill. 62033.

Benford, Calander named SIUE's best 85-86 athletes

EDWARDSVILLE — Booker Benford, the four-time NCAA-II All-American and two-time NCAA-I All-American wrestler, and Elisabeth Calander, the two-time NCAA-II national tennis champion, were named Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville's outstanding athletes for 1984-85.

Benford, a senior from Providence, R.I., smashed the SIUE record books this season, winning 53 matches, claiming his second consecutive 177-pound NCAA-II championship, earning his third trip to the NCAA-I National Tournament and capturing the bronze medal at the Division I meet for the second time. He also broke the SIUE career mark for victories in 1984-85, winning his 159th match of his four-year varsity career. He also served as co-captain of the national championship Cougars for the second year.

Calander, who announced she will be returning to her native Stockholm, Sweden, after completing her sophomore year at SIUE, won her second consecutive NCAA-II title by topping the University of California-Davis' Maria Newton in the finals, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4. Calander, who breezed through the Division II Tournament in Bakersfield, Cal. by losing just four games in her first three matches, posted a 3-4 singles record this season and earned her second trip to the NCAA-I National Tournament.

Lynne Lashbrook, SIUE's director of athletics, also presented SIUE's male and female sportsmanship awards, while Warren Stookey, director of alumni services, presented the annual Scholar-Athlete award.

Bill Stallings, who virtually rewrote the SIUE soccer record book, was named winner of the sportsmanship award for the men, while Laurie Foederer, an All-American tennis player from Highland, and Sandy Montgomery, a senior who led the softball Cougars to the NCAA-II Regional Tournament, were named co-winners of the award for the women.

Dave Cappetta, the senior goalkeeper on the Cougar soccer team, was recipient of the Alumni Association's scholar-athlete award.

For the men, while Nancy Swain, who holds school records in both basketball and softball, won the award for the women. Cappetta, a biology major, will attend the SIU School of Dental Medicine next year. Swain will receive her degree in physical education and recreation in June.

Lashbrook also introduced players from each team who were selected by their team as the squad's most valuable player. Receiving the awards were: Tony Duenas (Belleville) in baseball; Kenny Stanley (Madison) in men's basketball; Barbie Drew (Carbondale) in women's basketball; Bill Stallings (St. Louis) in men's soccer; Sue Balota (St. Louis) in women's soccer; Sandy Montgomery (Casey) in softball; Miguel Hobbs (O'Fallon) in cross country; Kevin Veit (St. Louis) in men's track and field; Diane Kortz (Belleville) in women's track and field; Perry Sullivan (Maumee, Ohio) in golf; and Benford and Calander in wrestling and women's tennis, respectively.

Cougar Hurlers

Delkus, Duenas are honored

EDWARDSVILLE — Two of the main ingredients in Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville's record-breaking 1985 baseball season, Pete Delkus and Tony Duenas, have been selected to the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Division II All-American team. The Cougars' finest pitcher, Delkus, and Duenas led SIUE to its 11th trip to the NCAA-II Regional Tournament and its fifth trip to the World Series in its 18-year history. They also played a key role in the Cougars' record 36 victories in 1985.

Delkus, a sophomore from Collinsville who was selected to the second team of the All-American squad, ended the season with a team-best 2.11 earned run average, while setting a school record with 21 appearances. He also tied an SIUE mark by turning in six saves and became the fourth pitcher in school history to win eight games in a season, finishing the 1985 campaign with an 8-2 record. Of his 12 starts, Delkus posted seven complete games and two shutouts, including a five-hitter against Stephen F. Austin University and a two-hitter against Indiana State University-Evansville. He also completed the season ranked second on the team in innings pitched (89.3) and strike outs (58).

Duenas, a sophomore from Belleville who set SIUE records for home runs (15) and runs-batted-in (35) as a hitter, was selected to the third team of the All-American squad as a pitcher. Winner of a school-record 10 games in 1985, Duenas completed the season with a 10-3 record and a 2.93 earned run average. The 6-foot 6-inch left-hander completed nine of his 14 starts and recorded a save in his only relief appearance. He also posted four shutouts and set school records by striking out 95 batters and pitching 92 innings. In all, opponents hit just 194 against Duenas. A product of Althoff High School, Duenas also posted back-to-back one-hitters against S.F. Austin and Northeastern Oklahoma State during the 1985 season.

Joining Delkus and Duenas from the Midwest Region on the All-American teams were: Richard Johnson, a first-team designated hitter from Sam Houston State University; Ed DeGross, a third-team catcher from Lewis University; and Dan Geary, a third-team outfielder from the University of Missouri-St. Louis.

LeBrun runs Great Hawaiian Foot Race

Granite City's Rene LeBrun, one of only 98 who finished the grueling Bud Light Ironman Triathlon World Championship held last October in Hawaii, revisited the country recently.

LeBrun took three weeks off from his position as instrument inspector for Shell Oil Co. in Wood River to stop on 14 different beaches on the Hawaiian Islands of Oahu and Maui. Among the sites he was able to visit was the well-known Seven Sacred Pools, where Charles A. Lindbergh is buried.

It was all part of LeBrun's participation in the world famous "Great Hawaiian Foot Race." LeBrun was one of only 32 participants and a finisher.

LeBrun spent 15 days running as part of the 20-day endurance feat. In all, he covered 277 miles, including a 26-mile hike. While running, he averaged 16 miles a day. His longest run was 23 miles and his shortest 10.

The event, which began April 21 and ended May 11, marked only the third "Great Hawaiian Foot Race." The first was held in 1979. Seventy-five persons have taken part in the three, said LeBrun.

LeBrun said his next goal is to compete in a 100-mile 24-hour ultramarathon run.

Four local kickers named to state team

Four Granite City athletes were among several persons who were chosen as members of Illinois State Select Soccer Saturday and Sunday in Rockford.

The youth select teams are sponsored by the United States Youth Soccer Association, a division of the United States Soccer Federation, and are being held in cooperation with the Junior Olympic Development Committee.

Selected to participate in the under-13 age group is Troy Adamitis. The under-17 age group saw two players from Granite City make that squad — David DeToussie and Jim Parki.

Craig Dippel, who was selected to the under-15 age group, rounded out the participants from Granite City.

Dippel and his friends will vie for positions on a regional team and then ultimately seek a position on the national youth team which will practice at the Olympic Training Camp in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The state competition was held in Rockford's Sportscore Park.

Park seeks junior high softball teams

Lancers

anything that happens that early in a ballgame — the first inning — as a turning point, but that may have been the straw that broke the camel's back. It got our kids pumped up and it was obviously a letdown for them."

Still, with all the breaks, Patton said he never felt comfortable at any point in the game, a point where he thought his Lancers had the game won.

"I never felt like we had it sewn up," Patton said. "I've got strange things happen too many times to start thinking like that. Even with a 17-run lead."

DANOKIA coach Burt Clemons, on the other hand, didn't feel that way. "There was a time, in the third inning, when he felt his Comanches were too far behind."

"We're known for our ability to come from behind, but in the third, when they took a 10-run 11-1 lead, I felt like it'd be too tough for us to come back. That's an awful lot to make up in a championship game," Clemons said.

The Lancer victory avenged two earlier losses to the Comanches. At 23-12, the Lancers will square off against Hoffman Estates, the Barrington Sectional champion, on Thursday at 11:30 a.m. in the first round of the annual state tournament.

NOTICE TO CAR BUYERS

Beware of "Fogging System Rustproofing"!

Some automobile dealers in this area are telling customers that "no-holes-drilled fogging" is better than "direct spray" rustproofing. This is not true! The Attorney General's office of the state of Maine in their booklet "Rust Never Sleeps" advises asking (the dealers) if he drills holes and where. If he says he does not need to, ask him to show you the door.

DIRECT SPRAY vs. FOGGING

Real rustproofing requires drilling small access holes into "boxed" sections such as doors, rockers, pillars, hood and trunk lid seam areas; then uses special tools to apply up to two gallons of chemical, by direct spray, uniformly over every area needing protection. By contrast, a "fogging system" drills no holes. Instead they shoot a "fog" (chemicals atomized in air) into the boxed section, the hope being that the chemicals will settle uniformly over all the internal metal surfaces. To make matters worse, the fogging system companies currently in business tell their dealers they need to use only one quart of their chemical to "rustproof" a complete vehicle.

INDEPENDENT TESTS PROVE FOGGING DOESN'T WORK

It's an interesting theory, but unfortunately it doesn't work. According to The Lubrizol Corporation in a report dated Aug. 2, 1983, even chemicals normally providing good rust protection, when applied by the "no-holes-drilled fogging" technique, did not produce a coating which completely protects the internal surfaces, even at usage rates many times greater than could be provided by a one-quart application. The only test areas coated by the "fog-ing system" were those directly in front of the nozzle, and areas farthest away from the nozzle did not get an adequate coating.

ASK YOUR DEALER WHICH RUSTPROOFING METHODS HE USES

Everyone knows that all metal vehicles, even those with galvanized metal, will eventually rust at upperbody weld points, flex joints, and crimp seams, and at underbody seams and welds where salt accumulation and water/gravel abrasion is a problem. Why then are these car dealerships using this inadequate system? Because "fogging" is so inexpensive and takes so little time to apply that it has an enormous markup. Also their warranties generally exclude areas that are missed or otherwise not properly coated.

DIRECT SPRAY IS BEST

If your car dealer offers you full-quality holes-drilled direct spray rustproofing, you can be assured of full protection for your investment. If he tells you he uses a "fogging" system you'll be better off going elsewhere.

At Banquet Of lights and prejudice

By AL BARNES
for the Press-Record

The big argument of whether or not lights should be installed at Chicago's Wrigley Field brings to mind the question as to just when the first baseball park had electric lights so that the game could be played at night.

As for the big leagues — the Majors, that is — there can be no doubt. The City of Cincinnati, as in many other aspects of the grand old game of baseball, was the first to install lights. It was on May 24, 1935, the year Joyce and I were married, that the Reds played and defeated the Phillies, 2-1, at the old Crosley Field in the inaugural game under the lights.

The general manager, the head man, at Cincinnati then was Leland Stanford (Larry) MacPhail, who along with the Cardinals' Branch Rickey, did more than anyone else to save baseball from dying during the Great Depression. It was MacPhail's idea and the suggestion was greeted roughly not only by practically all the other top management in baseball, but the fans as well.

Rickey's principle contribution to keeping baseball from sinking in a sea of red ink was his imaginative use of Sunday double-header.

As mentioned, the first pro night game was played at Crosley Field. Crosley not only gave America night baseball, he had two other big firsts: the first small, inexpensive radios and, when you think of what has happened in the field of motor cars, the first little, small compact car.

The first lights installed in a minor league baseball field, according to my research, was at Des Moines, Iowa, in the Western Association league and was the brain child of a former St. Louisan, Lee Keyser. In 1930, when the Depression was growing deeper, Keyser, president and general manager of the Iowa club, had the great idea of installing lights.

However, I'm sure that I saw a night professional baseball game.

played "under the lights" midway during the 1929 season up at Bloomington, Ill. The Bloomington team was a member of the old Three (Indiana, Illinois and Iowa) Eye League.

It was late summer and before the Depression struck, which hit in October of 1929. I had returned to Lincoln, to finish my senior year in high school. Dr. Alvey, who ran a drug store in Lincoln, had given me a job so that I could continue my education.

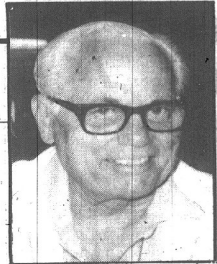

Paul Sollars, who had, along with me, been raised at the Illinois Odd Fellows Orphans Home, was still at the home as the farmer in charge of working the school's 360 acres of farm land.

Visiting at the home, Sollars, who was several years older than I, asked me if I would be interested in "seeing a baseball game played under lights up in Bloomington."

"Sure," replied I and we agreed to drive up (in his old Model T Ford touring car) the following day. Bloomington was just 30 miles north of Lincoln so we allowed ourselves an hour driving time and decided to eat supper before the game at a hotel in downtown Bloomington.

What then happened in the lobby of the hotel hit me even harder and made more of an impression on me than did the baseball game under the lights.

As Paul and I walked through the hotel lobby, we were riveted and struck dumb by the drama being played out there in public. It was my first contact with bigotry and religious prejudice. I remember it now as if it were just yesterday. It was a wedding party and the beautiful little bride was crying and sobbing in great gulps.

Gathered around the sobbing bride was the wedding party. The fathers of both the bride and groom were pleading and arguing with the beleaguered desk clerk who, it was quickly discerned, was refusing to admit the young bridal couple because, as Sollars, who was older and wiser in the way of life than I, explained to me: "They are Jewish," he pointed out, "and they don't accept them in the hotel."

I was really impressed by the lights, true, but I don't think that I have ever recovered from my feeling of revulsion when it sunk in on me that two young people here in the U.S. of A. were refused lodgings because of their religious faith.

It is well to remember that that scene took place just 10 years before World War II broke out in Poland late in 1939.

Now, a little over 50 years after the first major league ball park was lit for night games, I predict that the Cubs will fall in line before the 1985 season is over.

Financial management seminar scheduled June 22

The River Bluffs Girl Scout Council is presenting a financial management seminar for women on Saturday, June 22, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Called "Dollars and Sense," this program would be of interest to women wanting to effectively manage their money. Eight workshops, a panel discussion and a catered lunch are on the agenda for the day.

The session includes "Stretching Your Money," to be presented by Anne Thompson, a member of Channel 5's Eye Witness News team. Thompson will be speaking on discount shopping and couponing.

Carol Bello, a counselor from Consumer Credit Counseling Service in St. Louis, will discuss "How to Get Control of Your Money." She addresses the perils of co-signing loans, how to establish a good credit history, budgeting, tips for cutting back and how to handle lost checks and stolen credit cards.

A workshop on "Investments" will be led by Patricia W. Bartsokas, an account executive with Newhard, Cook and Company in Belleville. Bartsokas will discuss the various ways of investing money. Her discussion includes stocks, bonds, limited partnerships and unit investments.

Roger J. Lowery, C.L.U., will conduct a workshop on "Insurance." Lowery, of Northwestern Mutual Life, has been in the insurance business for 15 years and is a certified financial planner. He discusses the use of insurance in financial planning.

"Divorce and Child Custody Protection" will be addressed by Roza Gossage, a Belleville attorney. After a catered lunch, all participants are invited to attend a panel discussion on "Insurance," "Investments" and "Estate Planning Wills and Trusts." Moderated by Anabel Selby, director of marketing for Illinois State Trust Company, the panel will include George E. Marifian, attorney for Mathis, Marifian and Richter; Patricia Bartsokas and Roger J. Lowery.

Three more workshops in the afternoon will round out the day's event. A program on planned retirement entitled "Women and Aging—Strategies for Growth and Fulfillment" will be offered by Margaret L. Henderson of Granite City. She holds a graduate certificate in gerontology and has conducted numerous workshops on memory retention for older adults and caring for the elderly in the home.

Arnold Franke, director of the Small Business Development Center, will lead a workshop on "Starting Your Own Business." He has served in several academic and administrative positions at Southern Illinois University since 1965. He specializes in general management, labor relations and business and economic development.

Two financial counselors from Germania Federal Savings and Loan Association will discuss "Buying A Home." They will discuss what is involved in a credit investigation and how loans are evaluated. Between the two, they represent 25 years experience in the banking business.

Participants may choose to attend any two workshops in the morning session and one workshop in the afternoon. All participants are encouraged to attend the panel discussion.

The fee for registration for this day-long event is $25 per person. Lunch is included in the fee. Twenty dollars of the registration fee is tax deductible. A special rate of $15 will be offered for women 18 and younger and 65 years of age or older. Ten dollars is tax deductible. The cost of this seminar is being underwritten by the Magna Group Inc. Proceeds will benefit the Girl Scouts in the Metro East area.

To obtain a ticket or additional information, interested persons may contact Barbara Maynard, fund development director, at 1-254-5983. Registration deadline is Monday, June 10.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY AT EDWARDSVILLE Concert Chorale will perform at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, June 9, at St. Peter Evangelical United Church of Christ, 2101

Cleveland Blvd. Free will offering will be collected to support the groups tour of Europe and the Holy Land.

SIUE Chorale to perform Sunday at St. Peters

A special concert, to help raise funds for a summer tour of Europe and the Holy Land, has been scheduled Sunday, June 9, in Granite City by the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville Concert Chorale. The 45-member group, under the direction of Leonard Van Camp, plans a June 15 departure that will include 11 formal concerts and two special masses on the itinerary.

The Chorale, a 45 voice group, will also represent the United States in an international festival June 22 and 23 at Fano, Italy, on the Adriatic Sea.

The June 9 concert, at which a free-will offering will be taken to support the tour, will begin at 7:30 p.m. at St. Peter's Evangelical United Church of Christ, 2101 Cleveland Blvd. There will be a reception in the church hall after the concert.

This concert will include masterpieces from the 15th Century to the present, featuring music with both European and American origins. After Gombert's "Ave Maria," the Chorale will offer motets by Palestrina, Marenzio, Monteverdi and Victoria, running the cycle of the ecclesiastical year: Advent, Christmas, Lent and Easter.

Classical and Romantic selections are also included, such as Mozart's "Alleluia," Michael Haydn's "Tenebrae Factae Sunt," Bruckner's "Virga Jesse Floruit," and the Franz Liszt setting of The Lord's Prayer. Two 20th Century pieces will also be sung: "Ubi Caritas" by Maurice Duruflé and "Psalm 137" by Mario Zanchetti. The Zanchetti selection has been especially prepared for the festival in Fano.

There will also be early vintage American music, songs of current interests, and spirituals and folk songs. The music of William Billings and William White will be sung, along with compositions by Randall Thompson, Alice Parker, and Lloyd Fausch, and arrangement by William Dawson, Jester Hairston, James Erb and Ed Fissinger.

The singers at SIUE have a strong international reputation and have a previous victory in world class competition.

"Among the interesting aspects of this current program," noted director Van Camp, "is a number for women's voices in a double choir, a number for men's voices with percussion, and a commissioned work with oboe and dancer. There are works in which women's voices are set against men's, and music for small groups, as well as the full choir. We will sing in English, Latin and Italian, with music for unison voices and for eight-part chorus. The performance will have a great deal of visual as well as aural interest." For further information, contact Leonard Van Camp at 1-692-2024 or St. Peter's Evangelical Church at 877-1904.

Church holds annual meeting in Boston

For a denomination founded 106 years ago in the United States, the Christian Scientists' annual meeting June 5 had a decidedly international tone.

Highlights of the meeting included announcement of a new church president from Edinburgh, Scotland; reports to the several thousand members gathered in the denomination's historic Mother Church in Boston of new church activities in cities as far as Washington and as far as Kinshasa, Zaïre; and announcement of Christian Science Monitor broadcasting activities in New England and Europe, along with plans for Africa, Latin America and Asia.

Unlike some recent religious conclaves around the country, which have focused on reaching consensus on political and social issues, the Christian Scientists focused on what they see as the essentially "spiritual mission" of the church. But, as the meeting made clear, it's a spiritual mission which they feel has practical implications in human affairs.

Robert H. Mitchell of Edinburgh, stepping into the one-year post of church president, spoke of "the many challenges facing mankind today" which "force us to turn from material perceptions...to the motivating power that is already at hand."

A member of the church's five-person Board of Directors, Michael B. Thornelee of London reminded the audience of the theme of the church's worldwide satellite video-conference a few months ago: "To live for all mankind." Quoting from the writings of church founder Mary Baker Eddy—"Forget self in laboring for mankind"—Thornelee called on members to individually examine their own thoughts and lives in "self-forgetful prayer for mankind."

The manager of the Christian Science Publishing Society, John H. Hoagland, Jr., brought members up to date on the church's publishing activities, including its publication, The Christian Science Monitor. Hoagland stated that both circulation and advertising for the Monitor had risen over the past year, and the Monitor now has several broadcast activities in the United States and overseas. One of these, Montecarlo, a one-hour weekend program broadcast in cooperation with American Public Radio, now airs on 160 stations. (The Monitor was founded by Mrs. Eddy in 1908.) Nathan A. Talbot, manager of the church's committee on publication (an information office distinct from the Publishing Society), reported that a number of medical journals and encyclopedias have recently requested articles on Christian Science. He stressed, however, that what gives life and substance to ecumenical activities and articles about the church's teachings is members' individual lives.

"Thanking members and friends for their donations to the church over the past year, treasurer Donald C. Bowersock outlined contributions to drought victims in Africa, South America and the Far East. In concluding remarks, Hal M. Friesen, chairman of the church's Board of Directors, asked, "Where does the church go from here?" Progress, he said, "can come only through individual spiritual growth. We need living proof, not just profession."

Tutoring service at GCC improves student grades

Students having problems understanding math formulas, accounting procedures, and English structure and punctuation have been using the tutoring service at Belleville Area College's Granite City Center (GCC).

Tom Shipley, a student tutor, said students he has helped will stop him in the hallways to tell him how well they are doing in their classes.

Teresa Johnson, an educational specialist in English and director of the center's tutoring program, explained why GCC offers the tutoring service.

"We have a large amount of people who drop out because they can't make it in the college math classes," she said. "They need help from tutors. Basically, we are trying to retain these students with a little bit of help."

"Tutors see things from the student's angle," she said. "Teachers might not be able to understand sometimes."

According to records, students used GCC's tutoring service 150 hours during the spring semester. Hourly contact sheets signed by students showed that 86 hours were used for mathematics tutoring, 35 hours for English and 29 for accounting.

She said students used the service approximately 132 hours last fall. Shipley, who tutors students in math, business math and accounting, said most students come for tutoring in math because they don't have much math background.

"They don't understand theorems and formulas," he said. "People want to know the reasons for using them. I tell them not to worry about the whys of math."

"I tell them that a long time ago the Greeks said to do it this way. So just do what the book tells you to do. It works."

"I can't tell them why it works," he continued. "I just know it does. I'm sure there are math instructors who can explain it. But I just tell them to follow the book."

He feels he understands the problems students have with math. "After being a student and having math courses year after year, I know the problem of not understanding the instructor sometimes," he said.

He explained how tutors help students in the three accounting classes at GCC. "The accounting books start out talking in accounting terms," he said. "Most students who are returning to school after being away for a while don't remember what the terms mean."

"Tutors are needed to help students get a basic understanding of the terms," he said. "They also help them use formats for things such as: balance sheets, income statements and working papers." Shipley is a full-time student at GCC. He lives in Granite City with his wife, Nancy, and their 2-year-old son, Robert.

Linda Stacey of Madison tutors students in English, reading and math at the center. She also helps students in the reading lab, where students spent 252 hours this spring, working on their reading skills.

"I proofread a lot of research papers for English students," she said. "Most people need help with punctuation and sentence structure."

"I have mostly algebra students for math tutoring. Most of them hate math. They have in their minds that it is impossible," she explained. "I try to tell them to take it step by step."

"Most of them are finally getting it through their heads that it's not difficult. They just have a mental block because it is math."

Stacey was a chemistry major. She switched to math after working with calculations at her job as a lab technician for Prairie Farms Dairy. She ran tests for bacteria counts on dairy products. She would use formulas to tell if bacteria levels were low enough for consumers.

"I liked working with the calculations so much I switched my major to math," she said. "It was so easy for me."

Stacy said there are a lot more students who should be using the tutoring service.

"They don't want to stick around school after their classwork," she said. "She is willing to tutor beyond her designated hours."

"I'm always in the cafeteria," she said. "Students come up to me and ask me if I can help them."

Stacey lives in Madison with her two children, Sharon, 10 and Shawn, 8.

All sheriff's deputies will get sick-leave bonuses this year

All 80 Madison County sheriff's deputies entitled to sick-leave back pay will receive it this year, county auditor Pete Fields has told the finance committee.

According to the county's contract with Operating Engineers Local 520-C, the deputies are to receive sick-leave back pay bonuses accumulated over their periods of employment with the sheriff's department.

THE COUNTY board in March approved payments totaling $221,000 for 42 deputies, some of whom were to receive lump sums in excess of $10,000.

Fields had said only those 42 would be paid this year because there was only about $1,200 left in the sheriff's federal revenue sharing budget.

All the back bonuses were to be paid from the sheriff's department's federal revenue sharing funds.

However, Fields told the finance committee that an additional $82,000 from the county's personnel budget will be used to pay the remaining deputies.

FIELDS SAID there is a surplus in the personnel budget because the county overestimated the cost of health insurance premiums paid for county employees.

He said the county wanted to pay the deputies as soon as possible because interest on the back pay increased the county's obligation.

Quite frankly, the deputies wanted it (the back pay) and the county is better off without it. It will be a savings to the county in the long run," Fields said.

He said the money taken from the personnel budget constitutes a very small part of that total budget.

A RESOLUTION authorizing the pay to the remaining deputies will come before the full county board at its June meeting.

The practice of giving bonuses to deputies who do not miss work was eliminated last year in a cost-cutting move.

"We really wanted to get this out of the way," Fields told the finance committee.

Granite Cityan receives probation for theft plea

Patrick Gibbons, 20, of 15 Fontainebleau Drive has been ordered to serve six months probation and pay $55 in court costs for his guilty plea to an amended theft charge.

Gibbons was charged March 28 with theft of over $300 value after an investigation by Pontoon Beach police. He pleaded guilty May 14 to petty theft (under $300 value) and Madison County Associate Judge Edward G. Ferguson sentenced him.

GC motorists given warning

Granite City Police Chief Bill Harris issued a reminder Tuesday that the police department will conduct a city vehicle sticker drive, starting Monday, June 10.

Harris said check points will be set up throughout the city, and those Granite City motorists who do not have a city sticker displayed on their car will be fined. The fine has been set at $25.

Those wishing to purchase their city sticker before the deadline may still do so at the Granite City Clerk's Office, City Hall, 2000 Edison Ave.

GC man pleads guilty to residential burglary

Richard Galbraith, 21, of 38 Victoria Drive pleaded guilty April 23 to a charge of residential burglary. Madison County Circuit Judge P.J. O'Neill sentenced him to two years probation and ordered him to pay $95 court costs.

Galbraith was charged Feb. 26 after an investigation by the Madison County Sheriff's Department.

TWO CHARGES ARE FILED

April J. Beck, 26, of 4106 Kirkpatrick Homes was arrested at her home May 31 on a disorderly conduct charge and also was served a warrant alleging failure to appear on a property damage charge.

1985 CONFIRMATION CLASS of Hope Lutheran Church. The class completed two years of religious instruction in preparation for the rite of confirmation, held on Pentecost Sunday at the church. The young people and their families were honored by the congregation at a recognition dinner before confirmation. Front row, from the left, Greg Badger, Brett Rideout, Kathy Charter, Michelle Pinkston, Karen Dupont and Jenny Detwiler. Back row, left to right, Ben Szedlar, Greg Koberna, Brad Choot, the Rev. David Fielding, pastor, and Michele Massey, Amy Johnsey and Jeanne Bowles.

Files suit against officer and district

Myron Mitchell, who reportedly resides in Venice, has filed suit in the Madison County Third Judicial Circuit Court against the Venice Park District and Oliver Mason, a police officer employed by the park district.

The suit alleges on Sept. 10, 1983, at the Venice Recreation Center, Mason verbally harassed Mitchell and "pushed and beat" him, but did not arrest him.

Two counts were filed against Mason, who denied the allegations this week. A separate count was filed against the Venice Park District. Each count in the suit seeks redress of $15,000 or more.

Safe Boating Week in Illinois

"Safe Boating Week in Illinois" has been proclaimed through June 8 by Governor James Thompson and, as last year, the focus is on the hazards of mixing boating with drinking and drugs.

The theme for this year's observance is: "Think before you drink. Smart skippers stay sober." The message is aimed not only at "recreational boaters" but at all who use boats, including waterfowl hunters, fishermen, waterskiers and SCUBA divers.

Boating deaths totalled 1,240 nationwide last year, second only to autos among transportation deaths. Alcohol figured as either the principal cause or contributing factor in more than half of those fatalities, according to the National Safe Boating Council, Inc., which sponsor the annual observance.

The council is comprised of 39 public service organizations, boating industry groups and federal agencies.

With nearly 250,000 registered boat owners in Illinois / not including the hunters, waterskiers and others who may not own the boat they use in their recreational pursuit / the campaign has a large segment of Illinois' population in its sight.

"We are not trying to reinvent prohibition or restrict reasonable drinking by passengers," said A. Newell Garden, council chairman. "Boating is recreation, and alcohol is a socially accepted adjunct to recreation... but not for the boat operator."

Though alcohol may be one of the largest threats to boaters, it is not the only one. Failure to plan ahead, to check weather conditions, to wear flotation gear and to know boating's Rules of the Road contribute heavily to boating accidents and fatalities.

Failure to check a boat's wiring system, fuel lines, running light operation and the boat loading limit listed on the capacity plate, usually on the craft's transom, also are threats to safety.

Other common mistakes frequently leading to boating disaster are "clowning around" with a watercraft, standing in it and going boating without rest after a long, hot, stressful trip to one's favorite lake or river, authorities noted.

Thefts at cemetery curbed by police

A rash of purse thefts occurring at St. John's Cemetery in the last two weeks led to the apprehension of two Granite City juveniles.

An 11-year-old and a 13-year-old were arrested by police last week.

Petitions being sought in juvenile court on the 11-year-old include one count of burglary, four counts of auto burglary and two counts of theft. A juvenile petition for auto burglary is being sought on the 13-year-old.

Five weekend thefts at the cemetery were reported. Police noted they had not cleared all of the cases through the arrests.

Those reporting thefts included Mary Glinne, 2749 Roosevelt Drive, who is missing $102, four credit cards, a checkbook and eyeglasses; Norma Darnell, 2711 Center St., $20 and four credit cards; Hulda Davis, 3718 Fair Oaks Drive, $40; Martha Hart, St. Louis, $800 cash plus credit cards; and Katherine Taylor, 2116 Pontoon Road, a check for $163, a gift certificate, $6 cash and four charge cards.

PEDESTRIAN INJURED
IN HIT-AND-RUN CRASH
 John J. Getz, 22, of 2103 Missouri Ave., was injured June 1, when he was hit by a green and white pickup truck, which then fled from the scene.
 Getz was standing by his auto in front of his house, when the truck came around the corner at a fast rate of speed and struck him, knocking Getz against his car, reports said.
 The injured man was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center, where he was listed in satisfactory condition Monday.

In addition to the new one-day ticket price of $6.75 for senior citizens, Six Flags Over Mid-America also is introducing a special "Get Acquainted with Six Flags" week for "young at heart" guests.

During the week of Monday, June 10, through Sunday, June 16, persons 60 years of age and older will be admitted free to the 200-acre theme park in an effort to reacquaint senior citizens with the many attractions and rides in the park.

The best way to begin the day at Six Flags, officials said, is by taking time to enjoy giant wisteria shade arbors, shrub beds, flower borders and hanging baskets. Over 1,000 hanging baskets are displayed throughout the park during its operating season and over 500 different varieties of plants cover the grounds. There are over 100 rides, shows and attractions for guests of all ages.

New attractions this year include Looney Tunes personalities. Bugs Bunny, Yosemite Sam, Foghorn Leghorn, Daffy Duck and Sylvester stroll the streets of Six Flags, greeting guests with hugs and smiles. Bugs and Daffy can also be seen squabbling for the starring role in "The Bugs Bunny Story" featured in the Looney Tunes Theater.

Six Flags offers live show entertainment throughout the park all

GETTING ACQUAINTED. Six Flags Over Mid-America will host "Get Acquainted with Six Flags" week for persons 60 years of age and older. From Monday, June 10, through Sunday, June 16, senior citizens will be admitted free to the 200-acre theme park.

season long. "Hooray, U.S.A.!" in the Palace Music Hall presents a blend of patriotic music along with Broadway and show tunes popularized in the 1940s through today. Hand clapping, foot-stomping country good times of "Gonna Have A Party!" can be found in Miss Kitty's Saloon.

Song and dance also can be found elsewhere in the landscaped park. Clowns, jugglers, the Six Flags Barbershop Quartet and a tap dance team roam the streets.

The U.S. High Dive is back for another season of skills and theatrics. The team performs swan dives, flips and combinations followed by a comedy routine.

Between shows, guests can take a joyride on antique cars or a twist on the historic, hand-carved Grand Ole Carousel, celebrating its 70th birthday this year. The L'il General steam locomotive will take guests on an excursion through the park, and they may take a reckless ride on bumper cars or Thunder River.

Complementing all the shows and rides are gift shops displaying quality merchandise — from clothing to country crafts — and souvenirs of a trip to Six Flags.

Varied restaurants offer dinners and an array of fun foods, such as berries and cream and funnel cakes. The park also has skill games.

Six Flags opens daily at 10 a.m. through Labor Day.

GCMAN CITED FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE
 Nelson E. Crane, 58, of 2124 Cottage Ave., was charged with driving under the influence after Pontoon Beach police stopped him May 31 on Pontoon Road at the railroad tracks.

Crane failed a breathalyzer test and was released after posting $102 bond and his driver's license.

This is the factory that makes our cheese.

If you ever wonder what makes Little Caesar's® cheese taste so delicious, the explanation comes naturally.
We don't manufacture something made of artificial ingredients, additives and preservatives, and try to pass it off as cheese. We use 100% natural cheese, and nothing else but. That's the only kind of cheese that goes into our pizza.
Only at Little Caesar's.
